A book series dedicated to the harmonisation and unification of family and succession law in Europe. The European Family Law series includes comparative legal studies and materials as well as studies on the effects of international and European law making within the national legal systems in Europe. The books are published in English, French or German under the auspices of the Organising Committee of the Commission on European Family Law.

With the Netherlands being the first country in the world to open civil marriage to same-sex couples, there has never been a better time to publish the first ever complete English translation of Dutch family law. This book gives the reader, academic and professional practitioner alike, an opportunity to take cognizance of this important field of law. Both the publisher and the translators hope that this book will find its way into the hands of the large number of non-Dutch speaking persons living in the Netherlands whose life is affected by the law, which until now was not readily accessible. This work, thanks to the translation of the rules of Private International Law in the field of family law, also provides lawyers, civil servants and consular officers with insight into the applicable rules in international cases. It is hoped that this work will also further contribute to the development of an international legal discourse on the development of family law in other jurisdictions, whilst allowing the comparison with the law as in force in the Netherlands on the 1st October 2003.

A WORD OF INTRODUCTION FROM THE TRANSLATORS

If “words are the physicians of the mind diseased” (Aeschylus, 525-456 B.C.), then the path of a translator is a precarious one. A poor choice of words and the reader may suffer as a consequence. The task of a translator is thus doubly confounded: to accurately convey the wording of the original text, whilst at the same time expressing the meaning in a way able to be comprehended by the other. It is against this background that we began work on this translation more than one and a half years ago. Obviously, choices have had to be made and decisions taken in terms of style and terminology. As much as possible, we have tried to use the prevailing terminology in legislative instruments in the European Union e.g. Article instead of Section. Where no close equivalent exists, we have left the Dutch word untranslated in italics e.g. procureur-generaal, unless it was considered unnecessary in the context of the translation e.g. the term notary has been used for notaris, even though the position and functions of a notary differ from those of a notary public.

Difficulty has obviously sometimes been encountered in fully expressing the meaning of the Dutch terminology. For example, the term gezag has been translated as custody, since gezag is used as the overarching term for ouderlijk gezag (parental authority) and voogdij (guardianship). Reference to parental responsibility has thus not been made. The ambtenaar van de burgerlijk stand has been translated as the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships. The concept of civil status being absent in the common law countries, reference has been made to the equivalent system of registration. However, complete adherence to such a term would provide confusion in other areas of the translation, and thus the term “registered partnerships” has been included in the title of the Registry and the occupation of the Registrar. When confusion is possible, a footnote has been used to explain the difference between the two systems e.g. degree and graad. Sometimes the Dutch terminology used is legally imprecise, thus resulting in an equally imprecise English word or phrase being used e.g. life-companion for levensgezel; outlook on life for levensovertuiging.

Problems have also been encountered in basic questions such as the title. We have opted for reference to the Dutch Civil Code instead of the Civil Code of the Netherlands and entitled all statutes in the field of private international law in a similar manner as the most recent English statute in this field: Private International Law (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1995. Since the majority of the private international law legislation refers to recognition and enforcement of judgments as well as conflict of laws, reference to the term private international law was preferable. Whenever the masculine gender has been used, this has been extended to include the feminine gender when the legislator clearly did not intend a distinction to be made. In a similar vein we have also chosen to translate Koning as Sovereign (not as King) to indicate the gender-neutral status of the monarch.

Where the enactment of Bills is expected shortly after publication of this Book, the text of the articles to be amended is printed in italics after the relevant Articles. Where reference is made in Book 1 to other Books of the Dutch Civil Code or to the Dutch Code of Civil Procedure, a translation of the pertinent Articles is included in Part II, which also contains a translation of other significant legislation to which reference is made in Book 1. A translation of the Dutch Penal Code can be found in “The Dutch Penal Code of March 3, 1881” translated by L. Rayar and S. Wadsworth (1997, Fred B.Rothman). A translation of Books 3, 5, and 6, Dutch Civil Code can be found in “Netherlands Business Legislation” translated by P. Haanappel, E. Mackaay, H. Warendorf and R. Thomas (loose-leaf, Kluwer Law International).

Such a work can obviously not be undertaken without the help of others. The translators are indebted to Professor K. Boele-Woelki for her collaboration in this endeavour and the eventual publication in the EFL Series. We would also like to express our gratitude to Professor J. de Boer, Professor S. van Erp, Professor C. Forder and Mr. P.J. Kell. Although every effort has been made to ensure that this translation correctly reflects the law in force, mistakes are inevitable. Please address suggestions, corrections and comments to: I.Sumner@law.uu.nl or warendorf@leidsegr.xs4all.nl. We have sought to take account of developments in the law up to 1st October 2003.

AN IDEAL TEAM OF TRANSLATORS

It is with great pleasure that I have been asked to write this preface for the English translation of Dutch family law legislation by Ian Sumner and Hans Warendorf. As they have written in their introduction, the “path of a translator is a precarious one”. However precarious it may be, Sumner and Warendorf have proven with this translation that if the work is executed with care and precision, the result will be an excellent and accessible translation that clearly conveys the meaning of the original Dutch text.

This translation is the result of co-operation between a native English speaker who is currently undertaking comparative family law research in the Netherlands and also speaks Dutch (Ian Sumner) and a native Dutch speaker who is an experienced practising lawyer and has enormous expertise in translating Dutch legal texts into English (Hans Warendorf). In other words: Sumner and Warendorf are an ideal team of translators! They are both members of the so-called Pinyin Commission, which, under the auspices of the Netherlands Comparative Law Association, translates Dutch legal terms into English, French, German, Russian and Spanish. The Commission consists of both academic comparative lawyers as well as professional translators. The aim of the Commission’s work is to offer well-balanced translations to all those who translate or explain Dutch legal texts to a non-Dutch audience. In this way the Commission aims to promote uniform translations to avoid possible misunderstandings that may result from divergent translations. The results of the Pinyin Commission’s work have been published in Nederlandse Rechtsbegrippen Vertaald (1998, 2nd Edition, The Hague, T.M.C. Asser Institute). A forthcoming third edition will include English, French and German translations of terminology in the area of family law and the law of succession. The Russian and Spanish translations will be added in the fourth edition, which is due to be published shortly after the third edition.

A translation of Dutch legal texts into one of the major languages in Europe contributes to the further development of a European legal discourse that not only examines the law of the larger European jurisdictions, but also the law of the smaller ones. The existence of linguistic diversity in Europe does not mean that a truly European legal discourse is impossible, as I have already argued in “Linguistic Diversity and a European Legal Discourse” (editorial), Electronic Journal of Comparative Law (EJCL), Vol. 7.3, September 2003:
http://www.ejcl.org/73/editor73.html. In the area of family law this discourse has already led to the creation of a Commission on European Family Law, chaired by Professor K. Boele-Woelki. The work to be done by this Commission can only benefit from this translation of Dutch family law legislation.

DUTCH FAMILY LAW IS MORE ACCESSIBLE

The editors of the EFL series are pleased to publish the first integrated English translation of all Dutch statutory provisions in the field of family law. It is the first time in legal history that such a monumental project has been completed. It is my firm belief that this volume prepared by Ian Sumner and Hans Warendorf is of great value for both practitioners and legal scholars alike. Dutch scholars writing in English about Dutch family law and foreign scholars who are not able to read Dutch but who want to study and compare Dutch family law with their own family law provisions can from now on make use of an English translation which – due to the translators’ experience and knowledge of both the Dutch and English legal system – is completely reliable. Although it is generally acknowledged that principally a comparative study should not only pay attention to the ‘law in the books’ but also to the ‘law in action’, a comparative endeavour will not be successful if the main materials, in the case of the Netherlands, the statutes, are not accessible to those who are unable to read the primary sources. This publication provides the necessary assistance. The same holds true for practitioners dealing with cross-border family relations and officials of Dutch consulates and embassies who are competent to act as Registrars of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships. Making use of this translation can easily facilitate their task of providing information on Dutch family law in a foreign setting. In addition, the list of publications on Dutch family law in foreign languages will help one to obtain a better insight into Dutch family law. In this respect it is interesting to note that Dutch family law is considered to be both trend-setting and, at the same time, somewhat straggling behind. This proposition seems to be ambiguous. However, to put it succinctly, Dutch family law is unique in two ways. On the one hand, the Netherlands was the first country in the world where two partners of the same sex can enter into a marriage and where they can adopt a child. On the other hand, the Netherlands is still the only country in the world where the universal community of property scheme is the applicable legal matrimonial property regime. In the near future, however, a more modern property relationship law will hopefully come into force. The Bill is included in this volume.

This volume is of enormous value for the work of the Commission on European Family Law whose main objectives are to launch a theoretical and practical exercise in relation to the harmonisation of family and succession law in Europe. It would be greatly appreciated if translations
Dutch family law is more accessible of family and succession law statutes of other European jurisdictions in English but also in French or German could be added to the EFL series.

Due to the magnitude of the project the editors have decided not to include both the Dutch and the English versions in this book, but instead, to publish a printed version of the English text only with the Dutch text being available on the website of the Commission on European Family Law, see www2.law.uu.nl/priv/cefl.

Henceforth, Dutch family law will be substantially more accessible to and be better known by foreign lawyers. The credit for this important achievement must be completely attributed to both of these translators.

PART I.

BOOK 1, DUTCH CIVIL CODE FAMILY LAW AND THE LAW OF PERSONS
TITLE 1
GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 1

1. All those present in the Netherlands have the freedom and the capacity to enjoy civil rights.
2. Personal servitudes, of whatever nature and however named, are not tolerated.

Article 2

A child with which a woman is pregnant is considered to be already born whenever his or her interest so requires. If the child is stillborn, he or she is deemed never to have existed.

Article 3

1. The degree of consanguinity is determined by the number of births which the consanguinity has caused. A recognition, a judicial determination of paternity or an adoption is counted as a birth for this purpose.
2. A marriage or registered partnership establishes affinity between one spouse or registered partner and a blood relative of the other spouse or registered partner to the same degree as the consanguinity that exists between the other spouse or other registered partner and the latter’s blood relative.
3. Affinity is not extinguished by the dissolution of the marriage.
TITLE 2
THE RIGHT TO A NAME

Article 4

1. Any person shall have the forenames given to him or her on his or her birth certificate.
2. The Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships shall refuse to include any forenames in the birth certificate which are inappropriate or correspond to existing surnames unless these are also customary forenames.
3. When the declarant does not state any forenames, or when these are all refused without substitution by the declarant, the registrar shall, ex officio, give the child one or more forenames which will be explicitly stated as being given ex officio.
4. A change of forenames may be ordered by the district court on the application of the person involved or by his or her statutory representative. The change is effected by the addition of a subsequent amendment, in the court order, to the birth certificate in accordance with Article 20a(1). In the case of a change of forenames of a person born outside the Netherlands, the court making the order shall, where necessary ex officio, order either the registration of the birth certificate or of the instrument or decision referred to in Article 25g(1), or of the order referred to in Article 25c.

Article 5

1. Where legal familial ties have only been established between a child and its mother, the child takes her surname. Where, as a result of adoption, legal familial ties are established between a child and his or her father, the child takes his surname.
2. Where legal familial ties between a child and his or her father are established by means of recognition, the child shall retain the surname of the mother, unless the mother and the person who recognises the child jointly declare, at the time of recognition, that the child will have the surname of his or her father. Such a declaration shall be noted in the instrument of recognition. The first two sentences shall apply mutatis mutandis to the recognition of an unborn child. Where legal familial ties between a child and his or her father are established by way of the judicial determination of paternity, the child shall retain the surname of the mother, unless both the mother and the man whose paternity is established jointly declare, at the time of the judicial determination, that the child will have the surname of the father. The judicial decision as regards the determination of paternity shall mention the aforementioned declaration of the parents.

3. Where legal familial ties are established by means of adoption between a child and adoptive persons of different sex who are married to each other, the child shall take the surname of the father unless both adoptive persons jointly declare, at the time of the adoption, that the child will take the surname of the mother. Where the adoptive persons are unmarried or where they are married and of the same sex, the child shall retain the surname which he or she has, unless both adoptive persons jointly declare, at the time of the adoption, that the child will take one or both of their surnames. Where legal familial ties between a child and a spouse, registered partner or other life-companion1 of a parent are established by means of adoption, the child will retain his or her surname unless the parent and his or her spouse, registered partner or other life-companion jointly declare that the child will take the surname of the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion, or the surname of that parent. A judicial decision concerning the adoption shall mention the aforementioned declaration of the adoptive persons.

4. Where legal familial ties are established by birth between a child and both his or her parents, the parents shall jointly declare, prior to or at the time of the notification of his or her birth, which of their surnames the child will take. An instrument choosing a surname shall consist of the parents’ declarations made prior to the notification of birth. The birth certificate shall mention the declaration made by the parents at the registration of birth. A declaration not made at the registration of birth may be made before any Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships.

5. If no choice of surname is made in the cases referred to in paragraph (4) on or before the registration of birth at the very latest, the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships shall record the surname of the child as that of the father on the birth certificate. Where an instrument choosing a surname is made before or at the time of registration of birth, the child will be deemed to have this elected name from birth.

6. Where a mother, after a child’s birth, denies the paternity of her deceased spouse pursuant to Article 199(b), and was remarried at the time of birth and at the time of denial, the mother and her new spouse may jointly declare, at the time of denial, which of their surnames the child is to take. An instrument choosing the child’s surname shall be drawn up indicating the declaration of the parents. If no declaration has been made the child shall take the surname of the father.

1 The Dutch term levensgezel has been translated as life-companion. The term should be broadly construed. The term partner has been avoided to avoid confusion with a registered partner.
7. A child aged sixteen or older at the time when legal familial ties with both parents are established, shall personally state before the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships or a notary or, in the case of adoption or judicial determination of paternity before the court, which parent’s surname his or she will take. This declaration shall be noted in the instrument of recognition or in the judicial decision of adoption or the judicial determination of paternity.

8. A declaration of the parents referred to in paragraphs (2), (3), (4) or (6) may only be made with regard to the surname of the first child where legal familial ties are established with both parents. Without prejudice to paragraph (7), any subsequent children of the same parents will have the same surname as the first child. Where, prior to the birth or at the notification of birth, a choice of surname is made with regard to a child that is or has been stillborn, this election shall be noted in the instrument referred to in Article 19i(1), in which case it shall only apply with regard to that child.

9. Where one of the parents has died prior to the time within which an election of name must be made and no such election of name was made, the other parent shall make a declaration with regard to the election of the name. The same shall apply when a curator is appointed for one of the parents on account of a mental disorder or in the case of a judicial protection order over him or her.

10. If the father or mother of a child is unknown, the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships shall record a provisional forename and surname on the birth certificate in anticipation of a Royal Decree which shall specify the forenames and surname of the child.

11. Where, by virtue of paragraphs (2) to (9), inclusive, a child whose father is of noble birth does not acquire his surname, nobility shall not vest in that child.

12. The surname of children born of the marriage of a member of the Royal Family shall be specified by Royal Decree.

Article 6

A birth certificate shall in all cases constitute irrefutable proof of the surname.

Article 7

1. A person’s surname may be changed, on his or her application or on that of his or her legal representative, by the Sovereign.

2. He or she whose surname or forenames are not known, may apply to the Sovereign to specify a surname or forenames for him or for her.
3. A change or specification of the surname by the Sovereign will not affect the surname of the children of the person involved who attained the age of majority prior to the date of the decree or over whom such persons have no authority.

4. A change or specification of the surname by the Sovereign will remain in effect notwithstanding any later recognition or judicial determination of paternity.

Article 49a

1. A Dutch national who wishes to enter into marriage outside the Netherlands, will be issued with a certificate of legal capacity to marry in accordance with the model appended to the Convention of Munich of 5th September 1980, upon his or her request. Article 51

1. Blood relatives in the direct line, brothers, sisters, guardians and curators of one of the prospective spouses have legal capacity to enunciate impediments to a marriage when both parties do not satisfy the requirements for entry into marriage.

2. The persons mentioned in the preceding paragraph also have the right to enunciate impediments to a marriage when a curator has been appointed over the other prospective spouse and it is clear that a marriage would cause misfortune to the party whose blood relative, guardian or curator they are.

Article 52

He or she who is married with one of the parties or has entered into a registered partnership with one of the parties may enunciate impediments to any new marriage to be entered into on the basis of the existence of his or her marriage or registered partnership.
Article 53

1. The Public Prosecution Service must enunciate impediments to an intended marriage whenever it is aware of any marriage impediments described in Articles 31 to 33, inclusive, 41 and 42.

2. The Public Prosecution Service has the right to enunciate impediments to a marriage of a minor who is placed under supervision or under provisional guardianship, if opposition to entry into such marriage would be in the interest of such a minor; for this purpose the interest of the other party to the marriage is also taken into consideration.

3. Furthermore, the Public Prosecution Service has the right to enunciate impediments to a marriage on account of it being a sham as it would constitute a breach of Dutch public policy when both or either of the prospective spouses do not intend to fulfil the obligations arising from this Book in respect of the marital status but seek to obtain admission to the Netherlands.

Article 54

1. Enunciation of impediments to a marriage shall be made by the service of an instrument on the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships of one of the municipalities where solemnisation of the marriage can take place.

2. In order to be valid, the instrument shall state the election of residency in that municipality, the grounds for the enunciation of impediments and the capacity which entitles the party opposing the marriage to make an enunciation of impediments to the marriage.

3. The Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships on whom service of the instrument is made shall notify without delay the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships of the other municipalities where solemnisation of the marriage may take place of the enunciation of impediments made.

4. A person opposing the marriage shall procure that a true copy of the instrument of enunciation of impediments is served without delay on the party against whom it is directed.

Article 55

An enunciation of impediments may be lifted:

(a) in the same manner as in that in which it was made;

(b) by a declaration made in person before one of the Registrars of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships mentioned in the preceding Article;
(c) by a declaration made before a notary;
(d) by a court order that has become final and binding issued on the petition of an interested party.

Article 56

The solemnisation of the marriage may not take place before the enunciation of impediments is lifted. Where it has nevertheless taken place while proceedings to lift the enunciation were pending, then such proceedings may be continued where the person opposing the marriage so requires, in which case the marriage shall be annulled if the district court accepts that the enunciation of impediments is well founded.

Article 57

A Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships aware of the existence of any marriage impediment described in Articles 31 to 33, inclusive, 41 and 42 may not co-operate with a declaration of a marriage or solemnisation of a marriage, even though no enunciation of impediments to the marriage has taken place.

Article 94⁵

1. The community comprises, where its assets are concerned, all present and future property of the spouses, with the exception of property as regards to which it was provided by last will of the testator or when a gift was made stating that it would fall outside the community of property and with the exception of the right of usufruct in Section 2 of Title 3 of Book 4.

⁴ See footnote to Article 83.
⁵ See footnote to Article 83.
(c) rights to the establishment of a usufruct as referred to in Articles 29 and 30 of Book 4 and a usufruct established pursuant to such provisions.

3. Assets and liabilities which the spouses have contributed to the marital property shall not constitute a part of the community of property unless it is provided that these will constitute part of the community of property prior to the marriage by a notarial instrument, which shall include an instrument recording a marriage contract or a description appended to the notarial instrument signed by the future spouses and the notary.

4. The other half shall vest in the other spouse and shall from then on remain outside the community of property. If a creditor seeks recovery of an asset of the community of property on account of a debt which does not form part of the community of property, the other spouse is entitled to acquire the asset against which the creditor seeks recovery by paying one half of the value of the asset from his or her own capital. This asset belongs to this spouse’s own estate from the moment of it’s acquisition and does not fall into the community of property.

4. A spouse from whose own assets a debt of the community of property is paid shall have a right to compensation on account thereof from the assets of the community of property.

Section 2

The Administration of the Community of Property

Article 978

1. Property of the community is subject to the administration of the spouse from whom it originated insofar as the spouses did not otherwise agree in a marriage contract or the court has not otherwise determined when applying Article 91 of this Book. Property that is considered to have substituted other property shall be administered by the spouse who administered the substituted property. Property that has been put in the name of one of the spouses shall, however, be subject to the administration of that spouse. Each of the spouses has the right to interrupt prescription for the benefit of the community.

conduct of that profession or business, shall vest in the latter spouse and, for the rest, in the spouses jointly. When consent is granted, this shall be valid for the entire duration of the profession or business unless the spouses otherwise agree, provided that the district court may always terminate such use for well-founded reasons at the request of a spouse.

2. Where an asset of the community, with the consent of the spouse under whose exclusive or joint administration the asset fell, serves for a profession or business of the other spouse, the administration of that asset, insofar as transactions are concerned, which may be considered to constitute normal conduct of that profession or business, shall vest exclusively in the latter spouse and, in all other cases, in the spouses jointly. When consent is granted, this shall be valid for the entire duration of the profession or business unless the spouses otherwise agree, provided that the district court, on the request of the spouse who has given consent, may always terminate for well-founded reasons.

3. Disputes between the spouses in respect of the administration regarding assets and liabilities pertaining to the community of property, may be submitted to the district court at the request of the spouses or either one of them.

Article 98

When so requested, the spouses shall provide each other with information regarding the conduct of the administration and the condition of the property and debts of the community.

2. Whenever a community of property is dissolved, a claim for the division of the community of property or for an order on the manner of its division and the determination of the division may already be instituted in accordance with Title 7 of Book 3 together with a request which, when granted, will result in its dissolution.

The dissolution of the community of property by the lodging of a petition referred to in paragraph (1)(b), (c) and (d) and by the entry into of a contract referred to in paragraph (1)(e), may only be raised as a defence as against third parties, if the petition concerned or the contract was registered in the Matrimonial Property Register referred to in Article 116.

3. The withdrawal of a petition referred to in paragraph (1)(b), (c) and (d), or the notice of termination of a contract referred to in paragraph (1)(e) shall revive by operation of law all the consequences of the community of property as if no petition had been lodged or as if no contract had been entered into. 4. A claim for the division of the community of property or for an order on the manner of its division and the determination of the division may already be instituted in accordance with Title 7 of Book 3 together with a petition referred to in paragraph (1)(b), (c) or (d).

2. The part of the community of property which is renounced shall accrue to the part of the other spouse.

3. A spouse who has made a renunciation may not lay claim to anything from the community of property other than the spouse’s bed and bedding pertaining thereto and the clothing needed for personal use. The spouse may take over family papers and mementoes at the appraised price.

4. By such renunciation a spouse shall be released from liability and the obligation to contribute to the debts of the community of property for which he or she was not liable prior to the dissolution of the community of property.

¹⁰ See footnote to Article 83.
5. The spouse shall remain liable for the debts of the community of property for which he or she was liable prior to dissolution of the community of property. A spouse who has paid more than one-half of a debt for which both spouses were fully liable prior to dissolution of the community of property may have recourse against the other spouse for the part exceeding such half.

6. If the other spouse has paid a debt of the community of property, in full or in part, for which he or she was not liable prior to dissolution of the community of property, such a spouse shall have recourse on account thereof against the spouse who has made a renunciation. A spouse who paid more than one-half of a debt for which both spouses were wholly liable prior to dissolution of the community of property may have recourse for such excess against the spouse who has made a renunciation.

Article 104

1. A spouse who wishes to use the privilege described in the preceding Article must, within three months from the dissolution of the community of property, procure registration of an instrument of renunciation in the Matrimonial Property Register designated in Article 116 of this Book, failing which this privilege will lapse.

2. If the community of property is dissolved on the death of the other spouse, the three-month period shall commence on the date on which the spouse wishing to use the privilege has knowledge of the death. Where the community of property is dissolved by termination or by judicial separation, the three-month period will end when the court order has become final and binding.

Article 105

1. The heirs of a spouse, whose death dissolved the community of property or who has died within the period laid down in the preceding Article without having made a renunciation, each have the right, for their share, to make a renunciation in the manner described in the preceding Article within three months after having knowledge of the death.

2. A spouse’s claim to claim back his bed, bedding and clothing from the community of property cannot be assigned and is also not transmitted to his or her heirs.

Article 107

1. A spouse or a spouse’s heir who has appropriated property of the community of property or has mislaid or misappropriated property belonging to it may no longer make a renunciation. Acts of day-to-day administration or for the preservation of property shall not have this effect.

2. A spouse who, after having made a renunciation, mislays or misappropriates property of the community looses the right granted by Article 103(4) of this Book.

Article 108

1. A renunciation of the community of property by a spouse or heir of a spouse made after a renunciation by the other spouse or one or more of the latter’s heirs shall not have the consequences described in Article 103(2) and (3) of this Book and obliges persons entitled to the community of property to liquidate it. Section 3 of Title 6 of Book 4 in respect of the liquidation of the deceased’s estates shall apply mutatis mutandis where possible.

2. If a person who must liquidate the community of property fails to comply with this obligation, after having been warned to account for the liquidation, he or she no longer has the right granted by Article 103(4) of this Book.

Section 4

Dissolution of the Community of Property by Court Order

Article 109

A spouse may apply for the termination of the community of property when the other spouse rashly incurs debts, squanders the property of the community, performs acts which manifestly run counter to the administration of the other spouse in respect of the community property or refuses to give the necessary information on the condition of the community property and the debts for which recourse may be obtained against such property and the administration conducted in respect of such property.

Article 110

1. The application must be recorded in the Matrimonial Property Register designated in Article 116 of this Book and must be published in a national daily newspaper or in a daily newspaper with a circulation in the region where the court having jurisdiction to hear the application is located. The publication shall mention the date of the application and the surname, forenames, profession and address of each of the spouses. The court order may not be given within one month after the publication was made.

2. A spouse who applies for the termination of the community of property may take the steps for preserving his or her rights which are further indicated in the Code of Civil Procedure.

Article 111

1. The court order granting the application to terminate the community of property has retrospective effect to the date on which paragraph (1) of the preceding Article is complied with, from which date the spouses will be deemed to have married with exclusion of any community of property, with all such covenants as are specified in the court order.

2. A spouse against whom the application is granted and who has prejudiced the community of property by having rashly incurred debts since the commencement of the proceedings or within six months prior thereto, has squandered community property or has performed a legal act referred to in Article 88 of this Book without the required consent or authorisation, must compensate the loss caused to the community of property.

3. A right of action based on the preceding paragraph may not be instituted after three years or more from the date on which the court order became final and binding.

Article 112

1. In order to be effective as against third persons not aware thereof, the termination of the community of property must be publicly announced and, after the court order has become final and binding, it must be registered in the Matrimonial Property Register designated in Article 116 of this Book.

2. Publication shall be made by insertion of an extract from the court order in the Government Gazette and in one or more daily newspapers specified in the court order. The extract shall list the information referred to in Article 110(1) and the date of the court order and an indication of the court which gave it. The grounds on which the court order is based may not be included in the extract.

Article 113

When a community of property is dissolved by termination, the spouses may only agree to enter into a new community of property by a marriage contract.
TITLE 8
MARRIAGE CONTRACTS

Section 1
Marriage Contracts in General

Article 114

Marriage contracts may both be made by the prospective spouses prior to their marriage and by the spouses during their marriage.

Article 115

1. In order to be valid, marriage contracts must be entered into by notarial instrument.
2. Power of attorney to enter into a marriage contract must be given in writing and contain the provisions to be included in the marriage contract.

Article 116

1. Provisions in marriage contracts may be used against persons who were unaware thereof only if these provisions were registered in the public Matrimonial Property Register kept at the clerk’s office of the district court within whose jurisdiction the marriage is entered into or, where a marriage is entered into outside the Netherlands, at the clerk’s office of the district court in The Hague.
2. The manner of the layout and consultation of the register shall be further regulated by Regulation.

Article 117

1. Marriage contracts made or altered prior to a marriage shall only be valid if the persons whose consent necessary for a marriage have given their consent to the marriage contract or its alteration, at the time the instrument is made; where consent of the sub-district court is necessary, it will be sufficient if its order is appended to the original instrument. Article 39(1) of this Book shall apply mutatis mutandis to an application for consent from the sub-district court.
2. Marriage contracts made prior to a marriage shall enter into force from the date of solemnisation of the marriage; no other date may be specified for such a purpose.
Article 118

A spouse over whom a curator is appointed may only make or alter a marriage contract after solemnisation of the marriage with the consent of the curator.

Article 119

1. District court approval is required for making or altering marriage contracts during a marriage. The spouses must lodge a draft notarial deed along with the petition. The petition may be lodged without intervention of a member of the local Bar.
2. The full or partial approval shall be refused only where there is a risk that creditors may be prejudiced or if one or more terms are in breach of the rules of mandatory law, bonos mores or Dutch public policy.
3. The instrument shall lapse if it is not executed within three months after the court order granting approval became binding and final.

Article 120

1. Marriage contracts made or altered during the marriage enter into force on the date following that on which the instrument is executed unless the instrument specifies a later date.
2. Provisions in these marriage contracts may only be used against third persons unaware thereof if these provisions had been registered for fourteen days or more in the Matrimonial Property Register.

Article 121

1. The parties may derogate in their marriage contracts from the provisions of the statutory community property regime provided the stipulations do not conflict with provisions of mandatory law, bonos mores or Dutch public policy.
2. The parties may not provide that a spouse is committed to a larger share of the liabilities than that spouse shares in the community property.
3. The parties may not derogate from the rights arising from parental authority or from the rights conferred by law to a surviving spouse.
Article 122

The provisions of the preceding Title shall apply insofar as there has been no derogation, explicitly or by implication, from the clauses made in the marriage contract.

Repealed

Article 123

Where a community of benefits and income is agreed in the marriage contract, Articles 124-127, inclusive, of this Book shall apply insofar as there has been no derogation therefrom, explicitly or by implication.

Repealed

Article 124

1. A community of benefits and income shall comprise, insofar as its assets are concerned, all property which the spouses acquire during the lifetime of the community other than as a result of hereditary succession, bequests or gifts, with the exception of what shall fall outside the community of property pursuant to the following paragraphs.

2. An asset gratuitously acquired by a spouse shall remain outside the community if more than one-half of its price is for his or her own personal account.

3. Any amount collected on a claim which does not form part of the community and a claim for compensation which arises in lieu of a spouse’s asset, including a claim on account of a reduction in value of such an asset, shall remain outside the community.

Repealed

Article 125

A community of benefits and income shall comprise, insofar as its burdens are concerned, all liabilities of the spouses, except those which existed at the commencement of the community, either in respect of what was acquired by hereditary succession, bequests or gifts or which only relate to the person or assets of one of the spouses and are not customarily paid

Repealed

Article 126¹⁵

1. Assets and liabilities which belong to a business or profession conducted by one of the spouses fall outside the community of benefits and income. This provision does not apply to registered property in the name of the other spouse.
2. Indemnifications in the amount of the profits and losses of the business or profession shall accrue to the benefit or shall be at the expense of the community according to standards which are generally considered reasonable.
3. Insofar as a spouse has a dominant position allowing the spouse to provide that the profits of a business which is not conducted in his or her own name will accrue, directly or indirectly, to his or her benefit, such business is deemed, for the purposes of the preceding paragraph, as a business conducted by the spouse.

Repealed

Article 127¹⁶

Insofar as the assets of the community, at the dissolution of a community of benefits and income, taking into account the indemnifications referred to in the preceding Article and in Articles 95(2) and 96(2) of this Book, are not sufficient to satisfy the liabilities of the community, these liabilities shall be borne by the spouse from whose side these have fallen into the community insofar as the nature of the liabilities does not give rise to a different obligation to contribute.

Article 130\(^{18}\)

As against third persons a spouse can only prove his or her contribution pursuant to the marriage contract of assets which remain outside the community, insofar as rights to bearer and unregistered property assets are concerned, by them being mentioned in the instrument containing the marriage contract or on a list signed by the parties and the notary which is appended to the original instrument. If an asset that is so mentioned was not conclusively described, supplementary evidence may be given by any means; as regards assets which vested in a spouse without such a spouse’s knowledge, the proof may be given by any means.

A spouse may only prove vis-à-vis a third party the contribution of assets which constitute part of the community of property insofar as these are rights to bearer and things which are not registered property by a notarial instrument, including an instrument recording a marriage contract, when these are mentioned in the instrument or in a description appended to the notarial instrument signed by the parties and the notary. If an asset that is so mentioned was not conclusively described, supplementary evidence may be given by any means; as regards assets which vested in a spouse without such a spouse’s knowledge, the proof may be given by any means.

Article 131\(^{19}\)

1. Where there is a dispute between the spouses concerning the ownership of a right to bearer or a thing which is not registered property and neither can prove the entitlement to such an asset, such an asset will be deemed community property when there is a community property regime between them which could comprise such an asset. Where there is no such community regime, each of the spouses will be deemed to own one-half.

\(^{19}\) See footnote to Article 83.
1. Where there is a dispute between the spouses who have not been married with a community of property as to whom a right to bearer or a thing which is not registered property belongs and neither can prove his or her right to such an asset, the asset will be considered to belong to each of the spouses in equal halves.

2. The presumption does not apply to the detriment of creditors of the spouses.

Section 2

§1. General Rules for Netting Covenants

Article 132

1. This Section shall apply to marriage contracts which provide for one or more obligations in respect of netting income or capital.
2. Unless otherwise provided, there may be derogation from this Section by marriage contract, either explicitly or on account of the nature of the covenants.

Article 133

1. An obligation to net income or capital shall be mutual.
2. The obligation to net shall relate exclusively to income or capital acquired by the spouses while such an obligation in existence. Netting obligations apply neither to capital acquired pursuant to hereditary succession, bequest or gifts nor to benefits therefrom or assets obtained in substitution for such capital or benefits.

2. The obligation to net shall relate exclusively to income or capital acquired by the spouses while such an obligation in existence. Netting obligations apply neither to capital acquired pursuant to hereditary succession, bequest, the vesting of a beneficial title under a testamentary obligation or gifts nor to benefits thereof or assets obtained in substitution for such capital or benefits.

Article 134

It may be provided by testament of the testator or when a gift is made, that no netting is permitted of capital acquired pursuant to hereditary succession, bequest or gift and of benefits thereof, if the marriage contract provides for netting.

---

20 See footnote to Article 83.
21 See footnote to Article 83.
It may be provided by testament of the testator or when a gift is made, that no netting is permitted of capital acquired pursuant to hereditary succession, bequest, the vesting of a beneficial title under a testamentary obligation or gift and of benefits thereof, if the marriage contract provides for netting.

Article 135

1. The netting of income or of capital shall be made in halves.
2. Articles 181, 183 and 195 to 200, inclusive, of Book 3 of the Civil Code shall apply mutatis mutandis to netting provided that the dates specified in Article 142 shall be conclusive for determining whether there is a detriment referred to in Article 196 of Book 3 of this Code. Articles 677 to 680, inclusive, of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply mutatis mutandis.
3. Where a spouse wilfully conceals an asset that forms part of the nettable capital or causes its loss or keeps it hidden as a result of which its value is not included when the netting is made, there shall be no netting of its value but it shall be compensated in full to the other spouse.

Article 136

1. Where an asset is acquired using nettable capital, the acquired asset is deemed to be part of such nettable capital for such a share as corresponds to the part of the consideration applied at the time of the acquisition from the nettable capital divided by the total consideration. If a spouse has incurred a liability in connection with an acquisition of an asset, the asset is deemed to form part of the nettable capital on the basis of the first sentence insofar as the liability is deemed part thereof or is redeemed or paid therefrom.
2. Where there is a dispute between the spouses as to whether an asset is deemed to form part of the nettable capital and neither can prove it not to be deemed part of the nettable capital, the asset is deemed to form part of the nettable capital. This presumption does not apply where this would be to the detriment of the creditors of the spouses.

Article 137

1. Notwithstanding paragraph (3), netting shall be made in money.
2. When claims arise which, on account of a netting covenant, are mutually due and payable, both claims shall be netted by operation of law up to their common amount.
3. A spouse need only accept property in payment or may only demand property in lieu of netting in money, where netting in money would be unacceptable according to the standards of reasonableness and fairness.
Article 138

1. The spouses are not mutually bound to account for the administration of their property. Bad administration of property does not give rise to an obligation to pay compensation.
2. Each year the spouses may request from each other an itemised written and signed statement of the nettable income and capital. There may be no derogation from this provision.
3. Disputes between the spouses in respect of the statement shall be settled by the district court on the application of either spouse.

Article 139

1. A spouse may apply for termination of the mutual netting obligation when the other spouse rashly incurs debts, squanders his or her assets or refuses to provide the obligatory statement referred to in Article 138(2) on his or her nettable income or capital.
2. When the spouse, against whom the application is directed, causes a loss to the nettable capital by incurring rash debts after or within six months prior to the commencement of proceedings, has squandered nettable assets or has performed a legal transaction referred to in Article 88 without the required consent or authorisation, he or she must compensate the loss caused.
3. There may be no derogation from paragraphs (1) and (2).

Article 140

1. On the application of the spouse who is obliged to net, the court may, for important reasons, order that the sum of money due, increased with the interest to be specified in the court order, or without such an increase, be paid in instalments or only on expiry of a specific period, either in a lump-sum or in instalments. The court shall consider the interests of both parties. The court may oblige the spouse who is obliged to net to put up security, within a specific period, in rem or personal security for payment of the sum due.
2. Whatever is provided in paragraph (1) in respect of a spouse shall apply mutatis mutandis upon his or her death to his or her assignees under universal title.
3. There may be no derogation from paragraphs (1) and (2).
§2. Periodical Netting Covenants

Article 141

1. Where a netting obligation relates to a period of the marriage described in the marriage contract and no netting took place over such a period, the netting obligation shall remain applicable over that period and extend to the balance from investment and reinvestment of whatever was not netted and over the benefits therefrom.

2. Where a netting obligation relates to a period of the marriage described in the marriage contract, the netting obligation shall end at the time specified in Article 142, if such period is still running.

3. When, at the end of the marriage, a periodical netting obligation agreed by marriage contract referred to in paragraph (1) is not complied with, the then present capital is presumed to have been formed from what had to be netted unless there is a different obligation on account of the requirements of reasonableness and fairness in the light of the nature and extent of the netting obligation. Article 143 shall apply mutatis mutandis.

4. Where a spouse has a dominant position allowing the spouse to provide that the profits of an undertaking conducted in his or her own name will accrue, directly or indirectly, to his or her benefit and a netting covenant was made which would include profits from an undertaking, the non-distributed profits from such an undertaking, to the extent that this is generally considered reasonable, shall also be taken into account when determining the netting obligation of such a spouse, without prejudice to paragraph (1).

5. Paragraph (4) shall apply mutatis mutandis if a spouse conducts an undertaking in his or her own name.

6. A netting claim referred to in paragraph (1) shall not be prescribed within three years from the termination of the marriage or from the court order for a legal separation becoming irrevocable. This period may not be shortened.

§3. Final Netting Covenants

Article 142

1. The applicable date at which the composition and extent of the nettable capital shall be determined, shall be:
   (a) where the marriage or registered partnership ends by death: the time of death;

22 See footnote to Article 83.
(b) where the marriage is terminated by divorce: the date of the lodging of the divorce petition;
(c) in the case of a legal separation: the date of the lodging of the petition for a legal separation;
(d) in the case of discontinuation of the mutual netting obligation referred to in Article 139: the date of the lodging of the petition to discontinue such an obligation;
(e) in the case of termination by mutual consent of a registered partnership: the date on which the agreement for its termination is made;
(f) in the case of dissolution, on application, of a registered partnership: the date of the lodging of the application;
(g) in the case where a spouse has gone missing and the other spouse has remarried or entered into a registered partnership: the date on which the court order referred to in Article 417(1) becomes final and binding.
(h) in the case of termination of the mutual netting obligation in the case of a marriage contract: at the time referred to in Article 120(1).

2. A derogation made by written contract may be made from the introduction of paragraph (1) and (1)(b) to (f), inclusive.

Article 143

1. From the dates mentioned in Article 142(1) each spouse may request a description of the nettable capital of the other spouse.
2. Articles 671 to 676, inclusive, and 679 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply mutatis mutandis.
3. Whatever is provided in the preceding paragraphs in respect of a spouse applies mutatis mutandis on his or her death to such spouse’s assignees under universal title.
4. There may be no derogation from paragraphs (1) to (3), inclusive.

in respect thereof which, having regard to the circumstances of the case, may be considered fair to both spouses. The court may set the period for such a purpose.

2. Paragraph (1) is inapplicable:
   (a) when it may reasonably be expected that the other spouse can arrange sufficient provisions for such instance;
   (b) where the irretrievable breakdown of the marriage is predominantly due to the other spouse.

4. If the court has not fixed a period, the obligation to provide maintenance shall end by law on expiry of a twelve-year period commencing on the date of registration of the decree in the registers of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships.

5. If termination of the maintenance on expiry of the period referred to in paragraph (4) is so far reaching that it would be unreasonable and unfair as against the spouse entitled to maintenance to keep to such without alteration, the court may, on the latter’s application, still fix a period. An application for such purpose must be lodged within three months from the date of the termination. In its decision the court shall specify whether an extension of the period after its expiration will be possible or not.

6. Where a marriage has lasted for not more than five years and no children were born from such a marriage, the maintenance obligation ends by operation of law on the expiry of a period equal to the duration of the marriage, commencing on the date of registration of the decree in the register of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships. If the court fixes a period, this may not result in the maintenance ending later than would have been the case pursuant to the preceding sentence. Paragraph (5) applies mutatis mutandis provided that the words ‘the period referred to in paragraph (4) in the first sentence’ read: the period referred to in the first sentence.

Article 158

Prior to or after the divorce decree, the spouses may provide by contract whether and, if so, up to which amount one shall be bound to the other to provide for his or her maintenance after the divorce. Where no such period is laid down in the contract, Article 157(4) to (6), inclusive, applies mutatis mutandis.

Article 159

1. It may be stipulated in the contract that it may not be varied by judicial decision on account of any change of circumstances. Such a covenant may only be made in writing.

2. The covenant shall lapse if the contract is entered into prior to the lodging of the divorce petition unless this was lodged within three months after the contract. The foregoing shall apply mutatis mutandis in the case of a joint application.

3. Notwithstanding such a covenant, the district court may, on the application of one of the parties, vary the contract when the divorce decree is given or in a subsequent order because of such a far reaching change of circumstances that the applicant may not be required to comply with the covenant according to standards of reasonableness and fairness.

Article 159a

A contract referred to in Articles 158 and 159 of this Book does not bar recourse pursuant to Article 93 of the Algemene Bijstandswet (National Assistance Act) and does not affect the fixing of the amount for which there shall be recourse.

Legislative enactment, Staatsblad (Bulletin of Acts and Decrees) 2003, No. 376, not yet in force

A contract referred to in Articles 158 and 159 of this Book does not bar recourse pursuant to Article 13 of the Invoeringswet Werk en Bijstand (Work and Assistance Act) and does not affect the fixing of the amount for which there shall be recourse.

Article 160

An obligation of a former spouse to provide for maintenance to the other party on account of a divorce shall end when the latter remarries, enters into a registered partnership or has begun to live with another as if they are married or as if they had entered into a registered partnership.

Articles 161-162a

Repealed

Article 163

1. A divorce shall take effect by registration of the decree in the registers of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships.
2. Registration shall be made on the joint application of the parties or by either one of them.
3. If no application for registration is made within six months of the date on which the decree became final and binding, the decree shall become invalid.

Article 164

1. If a community of property existing between the spouses is prejudiced because one of the spouses has incurred rash debts after commencement of the lawsuit, or within six months prior thereto, has squandered property of the community, or has performed legal transactions referred to in Article 88 of this Book without the required consent or authorisation, he or she must compensate the loss caused to the community after registration of the divorce decree.
2. A right of action based on the preceding paragraph may no longer be instituted three years after registration of the decree.

Article 165

1. On the application of a spouse, the court may provide in the divorce decree or in a subsequent decision that, if such a spouse resides in a dwelling which at the registration of the decree belonged exclusively to or was co-owned by the other spouse or which the spouse was entitled to use, he or she has the right as against the other spouse to continue to live there and to use the things pertaining to the dwelling and its household effects for a period of six months after registration of the decree against a reasonable indemnification.
2. A legal transaction performed by the other spouse without his or her consent during such a period may not be raised against him or her where this would detrimentally effect the right set out in the preceding paragraph.
3. If the spouse refuses consent or is unable to state his or her wish, the district court which gave its decision in the first instance on the divorce petition, shall provide, on the application of the other designated spouse that the preceding paragraph shall remain inapplicable.

Article 166

If the divorced parties remarry or enter into a registered partnership with one another, all consequences of the marriage shall revive by operation of law as if no divorce had taken place. Nevertheless, the validity of legal transactions made between the dissolution of the marriage and the new marriage or registered partnership, shall be considered to be concluded at the time of the transaction. Article 119 shall apply mutatis mutandis to the making or changing of the conditions referred to in Title 8 in order to enter into the new marriage or the registration.

1. A judicial separation may be applied for on the same ground and in the same manner as a divorce.
2. Articles 151, 154 to 159a, inclusive, shall apply mutatis mutandis provided that the periods referred to in Article 157(3) to (6), inclusive, commence on the date on which the judicial separation decree is registered in the Matrimonial Property Register designated in Article 116 and that the lifetime of the marriage is calculated up to such a date.
3. An obligation of a spouse to provide maintenance to the other spouse on account of a judicial separation shall end upon the dissolution of the

Repealed

Article 173

1. A judicial separation shall take effect by registration of the decree in the Matrimonial Property Register designated in Article 116.
2. Registration shall be made upon the joint application of the spouses or by either one of them.
3. If no application is made within six months from the date on which the decree became final and binding, the decree shall become invalid.
Article 174

1. If a community of property subsisting between the spouses is prejudiced because one of the spouses has incurred rash debts after commencement of the lawsuit, or within six months prior thereto, has squandered property of the community or has performed legal transactions referred to in Article 88 of this Book without the required consent or authorisation, he or she must compensate the loss caused to the community after registration of the decree ordering the judicial separation.

2. A right of action based on paragraph (1) may no longer be instituted after three years from registration of the judicial separation decree.

Article 175

1. On the application of a spouse, the court may provide in the judicial separation decree or in a subsequent decision that, if such a spouse resides in a dwelling which at the time of registration of the decree exclusively belonged to or was co-owned by the other spouse or which the spouse was entitled to use, he or she has the right as against the other spouse to continue to live there and to use the things pertaining to the dwelling and its household effects for a period of six months after registration of the decree against a reasonable indemnification.

2. A legal transaction performed by the other spouse without his or her consent during such a period may not be used against him or her where this would detrimentally affect the rights set out in the preceding paragraph.

3. If the spouse refuses consent or is unable to state his or her wish, the district court which gave its decision in the first instance on the judicial separation petition, shall provide, on the application of the other designated spouse that the preceding paragraph shall remain inapplicable.

Article 176

1. A judicial separation shall end as a result of the reconciliation of the spouses, at the time when they have procured registration, on their identical request, in the Matrimonial Property Register designated in Article 116 that the judicial separation has ceased to exist.

2. Upon registration all consequences of the marriage revive by law as if no judicial separation had taken place. Nevertheless the validity of legal transactions performed between the judicial separation and the reconciliation shall be considered according to the time of the transaction.
Articles 177-178

Repealed

Section 2
Dissolution of the Marriage after Judicial Separation

Article 179

1. Dissolution of the marriage of spouses judicially separated shall be pronounced on the petition of one of the spouses, if the judicial separation has lasted for three years or more.

2. On the petition of a spouse, the three year period may be shortened to one year or more, if the other spouse has continuously been guilty of misconduct to such a degree that the spouse who made the petition cannot be required to continue with the marriage.

Article 180

1. If, as a result of the petition for dissolution of the marriage, in the case where a spouse who made such a petition predeceases the other spouse, an existing prospect of distributions to the other spouse would be lost or would seriously be diminished, and the other spouse raises a defence against the petition for that reason, the petition cannot be granted before provision has been made in respect thereof which, having regard to the circumstances of the case, may be considered fair to both spouses. The court may set the period for such a purpose.

2. Paragraph (1) is inapplicable:
   (a) when it may reasonably be expected that the other spouse can arrange sufficient provisions for such instance;
   (b) if the other spouse is continuously guilty of misconduct to such a degree that the spouse who made the petition cannot reasonably be required to make any provision for maintenance.

Article 181

Dissolution of the marriage of spouses who are judicially separated shall be pronounced on their joint petition.

Article 182

Articles 154(2) and 157 to 160, inclusive, of this Book apply mutatis mutandis provided that the periods referred to in Article 157(3) to (6), inclusive, will be reduced by the time during which there was an obligation towards the other spouse to provide maintenance during the judicial separation and that the duration of the marriage will be calculated until the date of registration of the judicial separation decree in the Matrimonial Property Register designated in Article 116.

Article 183

1. The dissolution of the marriage shall take effect by the registration of the decree in the register of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages Registered Partnerships.
2. Articles 163(2) and (3) and 166 of this Book apply mutatis mutandis.

TITLE 11
PARENTAGE

Section 1
General

Article 197

Legal familial ties exist between a child, its parents and his or her blood relatives.

Article 198

The mother of a child is the woman who gives birth to a child or who has adopted the child.

Article 199

The father of a child is the man:
(a) who, at the time of a child’s birth, was married to the woman who gave birth to the child unless subparagraph b applies;
(b) whose marriage with the woman who gave birth to the child is dissolved as a result of his death within 306 days prior to the child’s birth even if the mother remarried; if, however, the woman was judicially separated since the 306th day prior to the child’s birth or if she and her spouse have lived separate since that date, the woman may declare, within one year of the child’s birth, before the Registrar of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships that her deceased husband is not the father of the child. An instrument of this declaration shall be prepared. If the mother had remarried at the time of the birth, then the present spouse shall, in such case, be the father of the child;
(c) who has recognised the child;
(d) whose paternity has been established judicially; or
(e) who has adopted the child.
Section 2
Denial of Paternity by Reason of Marriage

Article 200

1. The paternity referred to in Article 199(a) and (b) may be denied on the ground that the man is not the biological father of the child:
   (a) by the father or the mother of the child;
   (b) by the child itself.
2. The father and mother may not deny the paternity referred to in Article 199(a) and (b), if the man became aware of the pregnancy prior to the marriage.
3. The father or mother may also not deny the paternity referred to in Article 199(a) and (b), if the man agreed to an act which could have resulted in the begetting of the child.
4. Paragraphs (2) and (3) do not apply to the father if the mother has deceived him as to the person who fathered the child.
5. The mother shall lodge the application to declare the denial well founded at the district court within one year after the child’s birth. The father shall lodge such an application within one year after he became aware of the fact that he was presumed to be the biological father of the child.
6. The child shall lodge the application to declare the denial well founded with the district court within three years after it became aware of the fact that the man was presumed not to be his or her biological father. However, if, during his or her minority, the child became aware of this fact, the application may be lodged within three years after the child has reached the age of majority.

Article 201

1. When the father or mother dies prior to the expiry of the period laid down in Article 200(5), a descendant of such a spouse in the first degree, or in the absence of a descendant, a parent of such a spouse may apply to the district court to declare the denial of paternity well founded. The application shall be made within one year after the date of death or after the applicant had become aware of the death.
2. When the child dies prior to the expiry of the period laid down in Article 200(6), a descendant of the child in the first degree may apply to the district court to declare the denial of paternity well-founded. When the child has reached the age of majority at the time of death, the application shall be made within one year from the date of death or within one year after the applicant became aware of the death. Where the child died during its minority, the application must be made within one year after the child, had it been alive, could have independently made the application or if the applicant became aware of the death at a later time, within one year after his or her having become so aware.

Article 202

1. After the court order declaring a denial of paternity by reason of marriage well-founded has become final and binding, the paternity stemming from the marriage shall be deemed never to have had effect.
2. Rights acquired by third persons in good faith shall, however, not be prejudiced as a result thereof.
3. A declaratory ruling that the denial is well-founded shall not give rise to a claim for reimbursement of the cost of care and upbringing or of maintenance and study or for reimbursement of what was enjoyed pursuant to a right of usufruct. No obligation shall further arise to reimburse proprietary benefits that were enjoyed to the extent that the person who enjoyed such benefits did not benefit thereby at the time the application was made.

Section 3
Recognition

Article 203

1. Recognition can be made:
   (a) by an instrument of recognition prepared by a Registrar of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships;
   (b) by notarial instrument.
2. Recognition shall have effect from the time it was made.

Article 204

1. A recognition is null and void, if it is made:
   (a) by a man who may not enter into a marriage with the mother pursuant to Article 41;
   (b) by a minor who has not yet reached the age of sixteen;
   (c) where the child has not yet reached the age of sixteen, without the prior written consent of its mother;
   (d) without the prior written consent of the child who is twelve or older;
(e) by a man who is married at the time of the recognition to another woman, unless the district court has held it to be plausible that there is or has been a bond between the man and the mother which may, to a sufficient degree, be regarded as sufficiently like a marriage or that there is a close personal relationship between the man and the child;
(f) while there are two parents.
2. The consent required pursuant to subparagraphs (c) and (d) of the preceding paragraph may also be given on the occasion of the preparation of the instrument of recognition.
3. The consent of a mother whose child has not yet reached the age of sixteen or the consent of a child of twelve or older may, at the request of the man wishing to recognise the child, be replaced by the consent of the district court, if the recognition would not prejudice the interests of the mother in an undisturbed relationship with the child or the interests of the child and the man who fathered the child.
4. A man over whom a curator has been appointed on account of a mental disorder may only recognise the child after consent thereto is obtained from the sub-district court.

Article 205

1. An application to nullify a recognition may be lodged with the district court on the ground that the person who made recognition is not the biological father of the child:
   (a) by the child itself, unless the recognition took place during his or her majority;
   (b) by the person who had recognised the child if he had been induced thereto by threats, mistake, deceit or, during his minority, by duress;
   (c) by the mother if she was induced to give consent for the recognition by threats, mistake, deceit or during her minority, by duress.
2. The Public Prosecution Service may apply for nullification of the recognition on account of a breach of Dutch public policy, if the person who made the recognition is not the biological father of the child.
3. In the case of threats or duress the application shall be lodged by the person who made the recognition or by the mother within one year after such duress has ceased to operate and, in the case of deceit or mistake, within one year after the applicant discovered the deceit or mistake.
4. The application shall be lodged by the child within three years after it became aware of the fact that the man who was presumed to be his or her biological father, was not his or her biological father. However, if the child became aware of this fact while he or she was a minor, the application may be lodged at the latest within three years after the child has reached the age of majority.

5. In the case when either the person who made the recognition or the mother dies prior to expiry of the period laid down in paragraph (3), Article 201 (1) shall apply mutatis mutandis. In the case where the child dies prior to expiry of the period laid down in paragraph (4), Article 201 (2) shall apply mutatis mutandis.

Article 206

1. After the court order nullifying the recognition has become final and binding the recognition shall be deemed never to have had any effect.
2. However, rights acquired by third persons in good faith shall not be prejudiced.
3. The nullification shall not give rise to a claim for reimbursement of the cost of care and upbringing or of maintenance and study, or for the reimbursement of the benefit enjoyed pursuant to a right of usufruct. No obligation shall further arise to reimburse proprietary benefits that were enjoyed to the extent that a person who enjoyed such benefits did not benefit thereby at the time the application was made.

Section 4

Judicial Determination of Paternity

Article 207

1. The paternity of a man may be established, also where he has died, by the district court on the ground that he fathered the child or on the ground that the man, as life-companion of the mother, agreed to an act which could have resulted in the begetting of the child, on the application of:
   (a) the mother, unless the child has reached the age of sixteen;
   (b) the child.
2. Paternity may not be established, if:
   (a) the child has two parents;
   (b) no marriage would be permitted to be entered into between the man and the mother of the child pursuant to Article 41; or
   (c) the man referred to in the introduction of paragraph (1) is a minor who has not yet reached the age of sixteen, unless he died before having reached this age.
3. The application shall be lodged by the mother within five years from the birth of the child or, where the identity of the presumed begetter or his abode is unknown, within five years from the date on which the mother became aware of the identity and abode.
4. If the child dies before the establishment of the paternity could have taken place, a descendant of the child in the first degree\textsuperscript{25} may apply to the district court for a ruling to establish the paternity provided the man referred to in paragraph (1) is still living. The application must be made within one year from the date of death or within one year after the applicant became aware of the death.

5. Provided the court order in respect thereof has become final and binding, the establishment of paternity shall have retrospective effect until the moment of birth of the child. Rights acquired by third persons in good faith shall, however, not be prejudiced thereby. No obligation shall further arise to reimburse proprietary benefits to the extent the person who has enjoyed these was not benefited at the time the application was made.

Article 208

In the decision establishing paternity the district court may, on an application thereto, grant a contribution on behalf of the child to the cost of care and upbringing referred to in Article 404 or in the cost of maintenance and study referred to in Article 395a.

Section 5

Claim or Contestation of Legitimate Legal Status

Article 209

A person’s parentage as it appears on his or her birth certificate may not be contested, if such a person has a legitimate legal status according to such a certificate.

Article 210

An application to declare the claim or contestation of a legitimate legal status well founded is not subject to prescription.

Article 211

1. An application to declare the claim of a legitimate legal status well founded may be lodged:
   (a) by the child itself;
   (b) by the heirs of the child, when the child has died during his or her minority or within three years thereafter.

\textsuperscript{25} See the footnote to Article 201(1).
2. If the child had lodged an application referred to in paragraph (1), his or her heirs may continue the proceedings.

Section 6

Articles 213-226

Repealed
TITLE 12
ADOPTION

Article 227

1. Adoption shall be declared by means of a district court decision on the joint application of two persons or on the application of one person alone. Two persons may not jointly apply for adoption, if they would not be permitted to enter into a marriage with each other pursuant to Article 41.

2. A joint application by two persons may only be made when they have cohabited for a continuous period of three years or more immediately preceding the lodging of the application. The application by an adopter who is a spouse, registered partner or other life-companion of the parent, may only be made if he or she has cohabited with such a parent for a continuous period of three years or more immediately preceding the lodging of the application.

3. The application can only be granted if the adoption is manifestly in the best interests of the child, if it is established at the time of the application for adoption and it is reasonably foreseeable that, in the future, the child has nothing further to expect from his or her parent or parents in the capacity of a parent and if the conditions mentioned in Article 228 are fulfilled.

4. Where the forenames of the child are not known, the court shall also specify in its adoption order one or more forenames, after having heard the adopter or adopters and the child, when the child is twelve or older.

5. In matters of adoption, a minor parent has legal capacity to act at law.

Article 228

1. The conditions for adoption are:
   (a) that the child is a minor on the date of the first application and that the child, if it is twelve or older on the date of the application, did not manifest objections against the application being granted on the occasion of it being heard. The same shall apply if in the view of the court there appears to be no objections against granting the application of a minor who has not yet reached the age of twelve on the date of the application but who may be considered able to reasonably assess his or her interests in the matter;
   (b) that the child is not a grandchild of an adopter;
   (c) that the adopter or each of the adopters is at least eighteen years older than the child;
   (d) that neither of the parents contradict the application;
(e) that the minor mother of the child on the date of the application has reached the age of sixteen;
(f) that the adopter has cared and raised the child for a continuous period of not less than three years or, in the case of a joint adoption by two persons, that they have cared and raised the child for at least one year; if the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion of the parent wishes to adopt the child, the adopter and that parent must have cared for and raised the child for at least one year, unless the child is born from the relationship of the mother with a life-companion of the same sex;
(g) that the parent or parents do not or no longer have parental authority over the child. If, however, the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion of the parent will adopt the child, it is required that such a parent alone or jointly with the aforementioned spouse, registered partner or other life-companion has parental authority.

2. Any contradiction of a parent referred to in paragraph (1)(d) may be disregarded:
   (a) if the child and a parent did not or hardly ever lived together as a family; or
   (b) if the parent abuses his or her parental authority over the child or has grossly neglected the care and upbringing of the child; or
   (c) if the parent has been irrevocably convicted of the commission of any of the criminal offences against the minor described in Titles XIII to XV, inclusive and XVIII to XX, inclusive, of Book 2 of the Penal Code.

Article 229

1. Legal familial ties between the adopted child, the adopting parent and his or her blood relatives or the adoptive parents and their blood relatives shall be vested as a result of the adoption.
2. Legal familial ties between the adopted child, his or her original parents and their blood relatives shall simultaneously cease to exist.
3. By derogation from paragraph (2), legal familial ties between the adopted child and his or her parent or the latter’s blood relatives shall continue to exist, if the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion of such a parent adopts the child.
4. If the child, at the time of the adoption, has access to a parent as regards whom legal familial ties cease to exist, the court may rule that there shall continue to be a right of access. Articles 377a(2) and (3), 377e and 377g shall apply mutatis mutandis.
Article 230

1. The adoption has effect from the day on which the decision becomes binding and final.
2. The adoption shall also remain in effect where it would appear that the court wrongly assumed fulfilment of the conditions laid down in Article 228 of this Book.

Article 231

1. The adoption may be revoked by a decision of the district court on the application of the adopted child.
2. The application may be granted only if the revocation is manifestly in the best interests of the adopted child and if the court is convinced, in all conscience, that such a revocation is reasonable and the application is lodged two years or more but no later than five years from the date on which the adopted child reaches the age of majority.

Article 232

1. Upon revocation of the adoption, legal familial ties shall cease to exist both between the adopted child and his or her children, and the adoptive parent or adoptive parents and his or her blood relatives.
2. Legal familial ties that have ceased to exist as a result of the adoption shall revive as a result of the revocation.
3. Article 230 applies mutatis mutandis in respect of the revocation.
TITLE 13
MINORITY

Section 1
General Provisions

Article 233

Minors are persons who have not reached the age of eighteen and are not married or registered nor have been married or registered or have been declared of age pursuant to Article 253ha.

Article 234

1. Minors have the capacity to perform legal transactions provided they act with the consent of their legal representative to the extent the law does not otherwise provide.
2. Consent may be granted only for a specific legal transaction or for a specific purpose.
3. Consent is presumed to have been granted to a minor if it relates to a legal transaction in respect of which it is generally accepted practice that these are performed independently by minors of their age.

Section 2
The Grant of Limited Legal Capacity

Article 235

1. A grant of limited legal capacity whereby a minor is granted specific powers of a person who has reached majority may be granted at the minor’s request by the sub-district court, when the minor has reached the age of sixteen.
2. With due observance of Article 253a, limited legal capacity is not granted against the wish of the parents to the extent they exercise parental authority over the minor.
3. When granting a limited legal capacity, the sub-district court shall explicitly provide which powers of an adult are granted to the minor. These powers may not extend to more than the right to receive his or her income, in full or in part, and the disposal thereof, the entry into leases as lessor in respect of property and land, the participation in a partnership and the conduct of a profession or business. However, a minor granted limited legal capacity shall not be vested legal capacity to dispose of registered property, transferable securities or claims secured by a mortgage.
4. He or she may act judicially as a claimant or defendant in respect of the grant of limited legal capacity itself and in respect of transactions for which he or she has capacity pursuant to the grant of limited legal capacity. Article 12(1) of this Book shall not apply to such transactions.

Article 236

1. A granted limited legal capacity may be revoked by the district court, if the minor abuses it or where there is a well-founded fear that he or she will do so.
2. The revocation shall take place at the request of one of the minor’s parents provided they exercise parental authority over him or her and with observance of Article 253a, or on the application of the guardian.

Article 237

1. A court order whereby limited legal capacity to act is granted or revoked must be announced in the Government Gazette and in two daily newspapers to be specified in the order.
2. The announcement must precisely state the granted legal capacity and its purpose. Prior to the announcement neither the limited grant of capacity nor its revocation shall be operative vis-à-vis third parties who were unaware thereof.

Section 3
Child Care and Protection Board

Article 238

1. There is one Child Care and Protection Board.
2. The duties and powers of the Child Care and Protection Board shall be laid down by law. These will be executed by the Child Care and Protection Board on behalf of the Minister of Justice.
3. For the purpose of implementing its duties, the Board shall always keep itself informed of the development of the protection of children and promote collaboration with institutions for the protection of children and juvenile assistance and render advice when so requested or on its own initiative to authorities and institutions.
4. Its involvements do not encompass the religious or ideological bases of the institutions for the protection of children.
5. The seat, working procedure, insofar as the co-operation with the advisory and reporting units for maltreatment of children referred to in Chapter IVA of the Wet op de jeugdhulpverlening (Juvenile Assistance Act) is concerned, and the organisation of the Board shall be regulated by Regulation.

Article 239

1. The Child Care and Protection Board may act on behalf of minors who have their residency, last residency or their actual abode in the Netherlands. The Board may also act on behalf of Dutch minors without a residency, last residency or an actual abode in the Netherlands.
2. On behalf of minors with their residency, last residency or their actual abode within a court district the operating units of the Board within that district shall act for the Child Care and Protection Board.

2. When the moral or mental interests or the health of a minor so urgently require and where, in order to stave-off a serious risk, no delay can be afforded, the children’s court judge may delegate the provisional guardianship in respect of the minor to an institution for guardianship referred to in Article 60 of the Wet op de jeugdhulpverlening (Juvenile Assistance Act). The Child Care and Protection Board shall in that case turn to the judge within six weeks in order to obtain a provision for custody over such a minor.
3. The measure referred to in paragraph (2) may also be taken if a minor who has not yet reached the age of six months and is not subject to the

Article 250

When in matters regarding the care and upbringing or in respect of the capital of the minor there is a conflict between the interests of the minor and the parents entrusted with parental authority or of either of them or of the guardian or both guardians, the sub-district court shall appoint a special guardian to represent the minor in respect thereof, both judicially and extra-judicially at the request of an interested person or ex officio, if it considers this necessary in the best interests of the minor, having regard to the nature of the conflict of interests.

1. During their marriage the parents exercise joint parental authority.
2. After dissolution of the marriage, other than by death or after a judicial separation, parents who exercised joint parental authority shall continue to exercise such parental authority jointly unless the parents or either of them request the district court to provide that parental authority over a child or the children shall vest in only one of them, in the best interests of the child.
3. A decision based on paragraph (2) shall be given by a court order for a judicial separation, divorce or dissolution of the marriage after a judicial separation or by a subsequent order. Until the parental authority of one of both parents commences, this shall vest in the person who also exercised parental authority during the proceedings and this with the same powers and subject to the same obligations as were incumbent on that parent at that time.

4. If a decision on the basis of paragraph (2) did not relate to all of the children of the spouses, the court shall supplement it on the application of one of the parents, the Child Care and Protection Board or ex officio.

Article 251a

The court may give an order ex officio on the basis of Article 251(2), when it appears to the court that a minor aged twelve or older would appreciate this. The same shall apply if the minor has not yet reached the age of twelve but may be deemed able to reasonably consider his or her interests in the matter.

Article 252

1. Parents who are not and have not been married to each other and who never jointly exercised parental authority over their minor children, shall jointly exercise this if this has been recorded in the register referred to in Article 244 of this Book at the request of both of them.

   (c) custody over the child has been entrusted to a guardian; or
   (d) the provision in the custody of the child has ceased to exist; or
   (e) the parent who has parental authority exercises it jointly with a person other than a parent.

3. An appeal is only possible against the refusal of the making of a record if this took place on the ground that either or both parents lacked authority either on account of minority or the appointment of a guardian. In that case the sub-district court may be requested to order that a record be made. It shall reject the application if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected if it were to be granted.

Article 253

1. If former spouses remarry each other or enter into a registered partnership and immediately prior thereto one of the spouses exercised parental authority over the minor children, joint parental authority shall revive by operation of law unless one of the spouses lacks capacity for such parental authority or has been consensually or non-consensually divested therefrom or exercises joint parental authority with a person other than the parent.

2. A spouse whose parental authority has not revived may apply to the district court to entrust him or her therewith. This application shall be rejected only if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the children would be neglected if it were to be granted.

3. Paragraphs (1) and (2) shall apply mutatis mutandis if a judicial separation ends by the reconciliation of the spouses.

4. Paragraphs (1) and (2) shall apply mutatis mutandis if former registered partners who exercised joint parental authority over a child enter into a registered partnership with one another anew or marry one another.

Article 253a

authority in respect of the child alone by operation of law unless she lacked capacity for parental authority at her confinement.

2. A mother referred to in paragraph (1) who lacked capacity for parental authority at the time of her confinement shall acquire this by operation of law at the time when such capacity is vested in her unless another is granted parental authority at that time.

3. If at the said time another person has parental authority, the parent with capacity for parental authority shall apply to the sub-district court to entrust him or her with such parental authority.

4. When the other parent exercises parental authority over the child this application shall be granted only if the sub-district court considers this desirable in the best interests of the child.

5. When a guardian exercises custody over the child, the application shall be rejected only if there is a well founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected if it were to be granted.

Article 255c

1. A father of the child with capacity for parental authority who never exercised joint parental authority with the mother may apply to the sub-district court to charge him with parental authority over the child.

2. When the mother exercises parental authority over the child, this application is granted only if the sub-district court considers this desirable in the best interests of the child.

3. When parental authority has not been provided or when a guardian exercises custody, the application shall be rejected only if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected if it were to be granted.

Article 255d

1. If the provision in the parental authority of a child referred to in Article 255b(1) of this Book shall cease to exist, both its mother and its father or both, to the extent they have capacity for parental authority, may apply to the sub-district court to be charged with parental authority or joint parental authority, as the case may be. If the provision in the parental authority shall cease to exist on account of the consensual or non-consensual discharge of parental authority, the application shall be addressed to the district court.

2. The application referred to in paragraph (1) shall be rejected only if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected if it were to be granted.

3. Where both have lodged an application other than for the exercise of joint parental authority, the court shall grant the application of the person whose parental authority in respect of the child he or she considers to be most in the best interests of the child.

4. If, prior to a decision on the application of one parent, the other parent obtains the parental authority in respect of the child by operation of law, the court shall grant the application only if it considers this desirable in the best interests of the child.

Article 253e

Where an application of one of the parents referred to in Articles 253b, 253c and 253d of this Book is granted and the other parent exercised parental authority until that time, this shall cause the latter to lose such parental authority.

Article 253f

After the death of one of the parents the surviving parent shall exercise parental authority over the children by operation of law, if and to the extent that he or she exercises parental authority at the time of death.

Article 253g

1. If the parent who dies exercised sole parental authority over their minor children, the court shall order that the surviving spouse or a third person be charged with custody over the children.
2. The court shall do so on the application of the Child Care and Protection Board, the surviving spouse or ex officio.
3. The application to charge the surviving spouse with parental authority shall be rejected only if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the children would be neglected where it to be granted.
4. The provision in the preceding paragraph shall also apply if the deceased parent had designated a guardian in accordance with Article 292 of this Book.
5. The district court shall have jurisdiction to give the orders referred to in this Article, if:
   (a) it relates to the death of the parent who exercised sole parental authority after the judicial dissolution of the marriage or after a judicial separation or who was charged with sole parental authority after exercising joint parental authority as referred to in Article 252(1) of this Book;
   (b) the surviving spouse was consensually or non-consensually vested with parental authority and an application is made to charge this parent with parental authority.

In other instances the sub-district court has jurisdiction.
Article 253h

1. If a guardian is appointed after the death of one of the parents, the court may alter such an order at any time in such a manner that the surviving parent, provided that such a parent has capacity thereto, is still charged with parental authority.

2. It shall only proceed hereto on the application of the surviving spouse and only on the basis that there has been a change of circumstances thereafter or that, when the decision was taken, it was based on incorrect or incomplete information.

3. When the other parent had designated a guardian in accordance with Article 292 of this Book and the latter has meanwhile acted as such, this Article shall apply mutatis mutandis provided, when this application of the surviving spouse is made within one year after commencement of the guardianship, that it is only rejected if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the children would be neglected were it to be granted.

4. Article 253g(5) of this Book shall apply mutatis mutandis.

2. The application can also be made on behalf of the woman by the Child Care and Protection Board. It needs her written consent hereto. The application shall lapse if the woman withdraws her consent.

3. The application may also be made by or on behalf of the woman prior to the confinement and when the woman will only reach the age of sixteen around the time of her confinement. In this case a decision on the application shall not be made before the confinement or, if the woman is still not sixteen at that time, after she has reached that age.

4. The children’s court judge shall only grant the application, if he or she considers this desirable in the best interests of the mother and her child. If another person is charged with custody, the mother is charged therewith.

5. A minor woman has legal capacity to act at law and to institute an appeal against such a decision.
§3. The Administration by the Parents

Article 253i

1. In the case of the exercise of joint parental authority, the parents shall jointly conduct the administration of the capital of a child and shall jointly represent the child in civil law acts provided that a parent shall also have capacity to do so alone provided there have appeared to be no objections from the other parent.

2. Article 253a of this Book applies mutatis mutandis provided that where mention is made of ‘the district court’ this shall read ‘the sub-district court’.

3. Where a parent exercises sole parental authority, that parent shall conduct the administration of the capital of the child and represent the child in civil law acts.

4. There may be derogation from the provisions in paragraphs (1) and (3):
   (a) if the court has provided in the order whereby it entrusts the exercise of parental authority over the child to one of the parents on the uniform application of the parents or on the application of either one of them, provided the other does not oppose it, that the parent who does not exercise parental authority over the child will conduct the administration of the capital of the child;
   (b) in the case of consensual or non-consensual discharge of parental authority pursuant to Article 276(2) of this Book;
   (c) if he or she who donates or bequeaths property to a minor or, as the case may be, by last will and testament, has provided that another will conduct the administration of such property.

5. In the latter case the parents or, when a parent exercises parental authority alone, that parent, shall have capacity to request the administrator to account for his or her administration.

6. On the lapse of the administration instituted by the donor or testator paragraphs (1) and (2) and, as the case may be, paragraph (3) shall apply.

Article 253j

The parents or a parent must act as good administrators in administrating the capital of their child. In the case of bad administration they shall be liable for the loss attributable thereto, except for the benefits from such a capital to the extent that the enjoyment thereof is conferred to them by law.
Article 253k

Articles 342(2), 344 to 357, inclusive, and 370 of this Book apply mutatis mutandis to the administration by the parents or a parent.

Article 253l

On the application of parents who are not married to one another or of either one of them the district court may terminate the joint parental authority referred to in Articles 251(2), 252(1), 253q(5) or 277(1), if the circumstances have changed thereafter or if its decision was based, when taken, on incorrect or incomplete information. In this case the district court shall lay down which of the parents shall thereafter have parental authority over each of the minor children in the best interests of the child.
2. Article 251(4) of this Book applies mutatis mutandis.
Article 253o

1. Decisions, whereby one parent alone is vested with parental authority, pursuant to the provisions of §1, §2 and §2a of this Title and pursuant to Article 253n of this Book may, on the application of the parents or of either one of them, be varied by the district court on the ground that there has been a change of circumstances thereafter or that when the decision was taken, it was based on incorrect or incomplete information. An application to still be charged with joint parental authority over their minor children may only originate from both parents.

2. The district court may also take cognisance of applications for a variation of decisions in respect of or connected to the parental authority issued by a foreign authority after a divorce or judicial separation effected outside the Netherlands, if the minor has his or her ordinary abode in the Netherlands. This court may also provide for parental authority or take a decision connected with parental authority, if the foreign decision does not lend itself to recognition or if, after the divorce or judicial separation, no such decision has been given and the minor has his or her ordinary abode in the Netherlands.

3. An application to vary a decision on parental authority shall be made to the sub-district court, if the sub-district court had given the decision to be varied.

Article 253p

1. In the instances in which both parents or either parent was vested with sole parental authority, this shall commence as soon as the decision involved has become final and binding or, when it was declared enforceable notwithstanding appeal, on the day after the decision was issued or dispatched.

2. After a judicial dissolution of the marriage or after a judicial separation, parental authority shall, however, not commence prior to registration of the order for a dissolution of the marriage in the registers of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships or prior to the recording of the order for a judicial separation in the Matrimonial Property Register specified in Article 116.

3. If a record was made as referred to in Article 252(1) of this Book, parental authority with which one of the parents is charged shall, however, commence only after such a record was struck by the clerk of the court. The clerk shall inform both parents in writing of such a cancellation.
Part I
Book 1, Dutch Civil Code – Family Law and the Law of Persons

Article 253q

1. When one of the parents who exercise joint parental authority over their minor children does not have capacity thereto on one of the grounds mentioned in Article 246, the other parent shall exercise sole parental authority over the children. When the ground for the incapacity has ceased, joint parental authority shall revive by operation of law.

2. When both parents who exercise joint parental authority over their minor children lack capacity thereto on one of the grounds mentioned in Article 246, the sub-district court shall appoint a guardian.

3. When a parent who exercises parental authority lacks capacity thereto on one of the grounds mentioned in Article 246, the sub-district court shall charge the other parent with parental authority unless there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the children would be neglected. In that case it shall appoint a guardian.

4. The decisions referred to in paragraphs (2) and (3) shall be given at the request of a parent, relatives by blood or marriage of the minor, the Child Care and Protection Board or ex officio.

5. When the ground for the lack of capacity of the parent first mentioned in paragraph (3) has ceased, he or she shall again be vested with parental authority upon his or her request, if the sub-district court is convinced that the child may again be confided to the parent. If the parents wish to be charged with joint parental authority, the application thereto must originate from both of them.

Article 253r

1. The provision in Article 253q of this Book applies mutatis mutandis, if:
   (a) it is impossible, with respect to one or both of the parents, whether or not temporarily, to exercise parental authority; or

2. Parental authority vested in one or both parents shall be suspended during the period in which one of the circumstances referred to in paragraph (1) occurs.

Article 253s

1. If the child, with the consent of it’s parents who exercise parental authority over it, has been cared for and raised for at least one year by one or more other persons as a member of the family, the parents may only make a change in the abode of the child with the consent of the persons who have assumed the responsibility for his or her care and upbringing.

2. To the extent that consent is required pursuant to the preceding paragraphs and is not obtained, this may be replaced by that of the district court if the parents so request. Such a request shall be rejected only if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected if it were to be granted.

3. In the case of a rejection of the request, the court order shall remain in force for a period, not exceeding six months, to be specified by the district court. However, if prior to the end of this period an application for a care and supervision order is made in respect of the child or for the consensual or non-consensual discharge of parental authority of one or both parents, the order shall remain in force until a final and binding decision has been taken.

3. Article 5(4), (5) and (7) applies mutatis mutandis with regard to the child over whom the parent, jointly with his or her registered partner who is not the parent, exercise or will exercise parental authority provided that, if the parent and his or her partner have not made a choice of name at the latest on the occasion of the declaration of birth, the registrar of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships shall record the surname of the mother as the surname of the child on the birth certificate.

§2. Joint Parental Authority of a Parent together with a Person other than a Parent pursuant to a Judicial Decision

Article 253t

1. If parental authority over a child vests in one parent, the district court may, on the joint application of the parent who is charged with parental authority and a person other than the parent who has a close personal relationship with the child, jointly charge them with parental authority over the child.

2. If legal familial ties exist between the child and another parent, the application shall only be granted, if:
   (a) on the date of the application the parent and the other person have jointly cared for the child for at least a continuous one year period immediately preceding the application; and
   (b) on the date of the application the parent who makes the application is vested with sole parental authority for at least a continuous three year period.

3. The application shall be rejected if, also in the light of the interests of another parent, there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected if it were granted.

4. Joint parental authority referred to in paragraph (1) may not be conferred in the instances referred to in Article 253q(1) and Article 253r. Legal persons shall not qualify for parental authority.

2. Article 253i applies mutatis mutandis unless the parent charged with parental authority does not conduct the administration pursuant to Article 253i(4)(a) or (c).

3. Article 253n applies mutatis mutandis provided the district court shall not give an order for the termination of joint parental authority referred to in Article 253t without first having given the parent not charged with parental authority or both parents jointly an opportunity to apply, in the best interests of the child, to charge him or her with parental authority over the child or to charge them jointly therewith.

4. If the district court, after termination of joint parental authority of the parent and the other person, has charged such another person with guardianship, it may at any time, on account of a change of circumstances, charge a parent with parental authority on his or her application in the best interests of the child or charge the parents with joint parental authority when they have jointly exercised parental authority, on their application and in the best interests of the child.

5. Article 253q(2) applies mutatis mutandis provided that the sub-district court shall not appoint a guardian without first having given the parent not charged with parental authority an opportunity to apply to be charged with parental authority over the child in the best interests of the child. The application referred to in Article 253q(2) may also be made by a person other than the parent.

6. Sections 4 and 5 of this Title shall apply mutatis mutandis to joint parental authority of the parent and the other person provided that in the case of consensual or non-consensual discharge of parental authority of the parent who, jointly with the other, exercises parental authority, the other person shall not be vested with sole parental authority without the district court first having given the parent not charged with parental authority an opportunity to apply to charge him or herself with parental authority over the child.

§3. Common Provisions in respect of Joint Parental Authority of a Parent together with a Person other than a Parent

Article 253w

The other person who, with the parent, exercises joint parental authority is obliged to provide maintenance for the child subject to his or her parental authority. If joint parental authority ends as a result of the child reaching the age of majority, the maintenance obligation shall continue until the child has reached the age of twenty-one. After a judicial decision for termination of joint parental authority has become final and binding or after the death of the parent with whom parental authority was jointly exercised until the time of death, such a maintenance obligation shall continue over the period that joint parental authority has lasted, unless, in special circumstances, the court on the application of the parent or of the other person, has specified a longer period. It shall end no later than at the time the child has reached the age of twenty-one. Articles 392(3), 395a(1), 395b, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401(1), (4) and (5), 402, 402a, 403, 404(1), 406 and 408 apply mutatis mutandis.

1. After the death of a parent who, with another person, exercises joint parental authority, such another person will act as guardian over the children by operation of law.
2. On the application of the surviving parent the district court may provide at any time that he or she shall still be charged with parental authority if he or she has capacity thereto.
3. Articles 253g and 253h shall not apply.

Article 253y

1. Joint parental authority referred to in Articles 253sa and 253t ends on the date on which the order has become final and binding whereby the parents were jointly charged with parental authority or joint parental authority of the parent and of the other person has ended.
2. When the order referred to in paragraph (1) has been declared enforceable notwithstanding appeal, joint parental authority of the parent and the other person shall end after the order has been issued or dispatched.

Section 4
Care and Supervision Orders for Minors

Article 254

1. If a minor grows up in a manner which constitutes a serious threat to his or her moral or mental interests or his or her health and other means for aversion of such threats have failed or, if it is foreseeable that these will fail, the children’s court judge may vest an institution for family guardianship referred to in Article 60 of the Wet op de jeugdhulpverlening (Juvenile Assistance Act) (Bulletin of Acts and Decrees 1989, No. 360) with his or her care and supervision.
2. The judge may do so on the application of a parent, another person who cares for and raises the minor as a member of the family, the Child Care and Protection Board or the Public Prosecution Service.
3. When applying paragraph 1, the children’s court judge shall have regard to the religious conviction and the minor’s outlook on life and of the family of which he or she is a member.
4. On the application of the institution for family guardianship, the parents charged with parental authority or of a minor aged twelve or older,

28 The term invensovertuiging is translated as outlook on life, a loose translation of an equally loose term in Dutch.
the children’s court judge may replace the institution for family guardianship which has the care and supervision by another. The Child Care and Protection Board is entitled lodge an application referred to in the preceding sentence, if it remains of the opinion that a care and protection order29 based on Article 263(1) should not be terminated.

Article 255

The children’s court judge may, pending an investigation, issue an interim care and supervision order in respect of a minor, if this is urgently needed and no delay can be afforded. The judge shall specify the duration of such an interim care and supervision order which may not exceed three months and may revoke the decision at any time.

Article 256

1. The children’s court judge shall specify the duration of the care and supervision although this may not exceed one year.
2. A children’s court judge may each time extend the duration for at most one year and may do so on the application of the institution for family guardianship, a parent, another person who cares for and raises the minor as a member of the family, the Child Care and Protection Board or the public prosecution service.
3. If the institution for family guardianship does not proceed to apply for an extension, it shall notify the Child Care and Protection Board as soon as possible while submitting a progress report of the care and supervision.
4. The children’s court judge may discontinue the care and supervision when there is no longer a ground therefor. The judge may do so on the application of the institution for family guardianship, the parent charged with parental authority or of a minor aged twelve or older.

Article 257

1. The institution for family guardianship shall supervise the minor and ensure that assistance and support is offered to the minor and the parent charged with parental authority in order to avert the threat to moral or mental interests or the health of the minor.
2. Such help and support shall be directed to ensure that the parent charged with parental authority shall as much as possible remain responsible for the care and upbringing.

29 The term wittuiplaatsing is translated as care and protection order, which is to be construed as an order for the removal of a minor from the family home.
3. If the level of age and development of the minor and the capability and need to act independently and to give direction to his or her life in accordance with his or her own insight so necessitate, the help and support shall be directed at enhancing the independence of the minor more than enhancing the possibilities of the parents to care for and raise their child.

4. The institution for family guardianship shall foster the family ties between the parent charged with parental authority and the minor.

Article 258

1. The institution for family guardianship may, when fulfilling its tasks, give written directions with regard to the care and upbringing of the minor.

2. The parent who is charged with parental authority and the minor must act in accordance with such directions.

3. The minor shall only be placed outside the family pursuant to Article 261 during the day and overnight, except in the instances where the parent charged with parental authority proceeds thereto without objection of the institution for family guardianship.

Article 259

1. On the application of the parent charged with parental authority or of a minor aged twelve or older, the children’s court judge may declare that a direction shall lapse, in full or in part. The application has no suspensive effect unless the children’s court judge provides otherwise.

2. When the application is lodged, the decision of the institution for family guardianship shall be submitted.

3. An application with the children’s court judge may be lodged within two weeks commencing from the day following the day on which the decision was sent or given.

4. An application made after the expiry of this term shall not be inadmissible on account thereof, if the applicant cannot reasonably be considered to have been in default.

Article 260

1. The parent charged with parental authority and a minor aged twelve or older may request the institution for family guardianship to withdraw a designation on account of a change of circumstances, in full or in part.

2. The institution for family guardianship shall give a written decision within two weeks from receipt of the request.

3. Article 259 applies mutatis mutandis.

4. Where the institution for family guardianship does not or does not timely take a decision, this shall be deemed to constitute a rejection of the application for the purpose of this provision. The term within which the application must be lodged with the children’s court judge shall, in that case, continue as long as the institution for family guardianship has not taken a decision and ends when the institution for family guardianship still takes a decision, two weeks thereafter.

Article 261

1. Where this is necessary, in the interest of the care and upbringing of the minor or for an examination of his or her mental or physical condition, the children’s court judge may authorise the institution for family guardianship, on its application, to instruct the minor to stay elsewhere during the day and overnight. In the application it shall be stated for which provision, kind of provision or other place of accommodation authorisation is requested.

2. The authorisation may also be granted on the application of the Child Care and Protection Board or of the Public Prosecution Service. Paragraph (1) applies mutatis mutandis.

3. For a care order whereby the minor is placed in a closed institution, an explicit authorisation for such a purpose of the children’s court judge is required. Such an authorisation shall only be granted, if so required because of serious problems in the minor’s conduct. As soon as an application for such an authorisation or extension is lodged with the children’s court judge, the judge shall, ex officio, instruct the Legal Aid Office to assign a counsellor to the minor.

4. The Minister of Justice shall designate institutions which are to be considered closed institutions within the meaning of this Article. This designation shall be published in the Government Gazette.

5. When granting and implementing such an authorisation, the children’s court judge and institution for family guardianship shall have regard to the religious persuasion and minor’s outlook on life and the family of which the minor is a member.

6. The placement in a home of a category mentioned in Section II(1) to (4), inclusive, or Section III(2) of the Annex to the Wét op de jeugdhulpverlening (Juvenile Assistance Act), insofar as it is maintained by the Minister of Justice, shall also end by a decision of the Minister of Justice, having heard the institution for family guardianship, when the Minister of Justice considers this necessary in connection with a correct apportionment of the accommodation available in such homes.

Article 262

1. The children’s court judge shall specify the duration of the care and protection order for the minor although this may not exceed one year. On the application of the institution for family guardianship or of the Child Care and Protection Board, the judge may always extend such duration for no more than one year.

2. If the institution for family guardianship does not proceed to apply for an extension, it shall so notify the Child Care and Protection Board as soon as possible and submit a report on the progress of the child under a care and protection order.

3. An authorisation shall lapse if it is not implemented within three months.

Article 263

1. The execution of a care and protection order may be terminated by the institution for family guardianship. The institution for family guardianship shall inform the Child Care and Protection Board hereof as soon as possible and submit a report on the progress of the child under a care and protection order.

2. The parent charged with parental authority, another person who cares for and raises the minor as a member of the family and a minor aged twelve or older may request the institution for family guardianship on account of a change in circumstances:
   (a) to terminate the execution of the care and protection order;
   (b) to shorten its duration;
   (c) to desist from a change of accommodation of the minor which is permitted pursuant to the authorisation. A change of accommodation includes a placement of the minor with the parent who has parental authority.

3. The institution for family guardianship shall make a written decision within two weeks from receipt of the request.

4. At the request of the person mentioned in paragraph (2) the children’s court judge may revoke the authorisation in full or in part or shorten its duration. Article 259(1), second sentence, (2), (3) and (4) and Article 260(4) apply.

Article 263a

1. Insofar as necessary, having regard to the object of the care and protection order of a minor referred to in Article 261, the institution for family guardianship may limit contact between the parent charged with parental responsibility and the child for the duration of the care and protection order.

2. The decision of the institution for family guardianship is considered a direction. Article 259 and Article 260 apply mutatis mutandis provided that the children’s court judge may adopt such an arrangement as the court considers desirable in the best interests of the child.
Article 263b

1. For the duration of the measure the children’s court judge may, at the request of the institution for family guardianship, vary a judicial decision for adoption of an arrangement on the exercise of the right of access insofar as necessary, having regard to the object of the care and supervision order.

2. At the request of the parent charged with parental authority, a person with a right of access, a minor aged twelve or older and the institution for family guardianship may apply to the children’s court judge to vary the decision mentioned in paragraph 1 on account of a subsequent change of circumstances or that when the decision was taken it was based on incorrect or incomplete information.

3. As soon as the care and supervision order has ended, an arrangement referred to in Article 377a or 377f shall apply as an arrangement adopted pursuant to this provision.

Article 264

If medical treatment of a minor who is less than twelve years old is necessary in order to prevent a serious risk to it’s health and a parent charged with parental authority refuses consent thereto, such consent may be replaced by that of the children’s court judge on the application of the institution for family guardianship.

Article 265

1. Applications made on the basis of Article 254(4) and Articles 256 to 264, inclusive, must be made in writing. Insofar as they are addressed to the children’s court judge, they may be lodged without the need for a member of the local Bar.

2. When the institution for family guardianship lodges an application or is summoned to appear, the institution for family guardianship shall send, together with the application or without delay after the summons, the plan of assistance and a progress report of the care and supervision order to the children’s court judge.

3. The plan and report referred to in paragraph (2) shall also be sent to Child Care and Protection Board.

4. The applications addressed to the court by the institution for family guardianship in the implementation of its remit may be lodged without the need of a member of the local Bar and shall be heard at no cost; the execution copies, the signed copies and extracts which are applied for such a purpose shall be issued to it by the clerks of the court without charge.
Section 5
Consensual and Non-Consensual Discharge of Parental Authority

Article 266

Provided this is not contrary to the best interests of the children, the district court may discharge a parent of parental authority over one or more of his or her children on the ground that such a parent is unfit or unable to fulfil the duty of caring or raising the child.

Article 267

1. Consensual discharge may only be pronounced on the application of the Child Care and Protection Board or of the Public Prosecution Service.
2. In the instance referred to in Article 268(2)(d) of this Book the consensual discharge may also be applied for by the person who has cared for and raised the child for one or more years at the time of the application, if the children’s court judge has rejected a request of the parents for consent to change the place where their child will reside. If the child has been cared for and raised by more than one person, may only be made on their joint request. Where a consensual discharge is applied for, Article 253s(2) of this Book shall not apply until a final and binding decision has been made on the application.

Article 268

1. A consensual discharge may not be pronounced when this is opposed by the parent.
2. There shall be an exception to this rule:
   (a) if it appears after the implementation of a care and supervision order of six months or more, or from the execution of a care and protection order pursuant to Article 261 of more than eighteen months, that there is a well-founded fear that such a measure, due to the parent being unfit or powerless to fulfil his or her duty of care and upbringing of the child, will be insufficient to remove the threat referred to Article 254;
   (b) if, without the consensual discharge of one parent, the discharge of the other parent would not prevent the children from being subjected to the latter’s influence;
   (c) if the mental faculties of the parent are so disturbed that he or she is unable to determine his or her will or the significance of his or her statement;
(d) if, after the care and upbringing of the child with the consent of the parent, otherwise than pursuant to a care and supervision order or a placement under an interim guardianship of one or more years by a family other than the parental family, a continuation thereof is necessary since if the child were to return to the parent serious prejudice to the child’s interests must be feared.

Article 269

1. If the district court considers this necessary in the best interests of the children, it may discharge a parent non-consensually of parental authority over one or more of such a parent’s children on grounds of:
   (a) abuse of parental authority, or gross neglect of the care or raising of one or more children;
   (b) of irresponsible behaviour;
   (c) irrevocable conviction:
      (1) on account of wilful participation in a criminal offence with a minor under his or her authority;
      (2) on account of the commission of a criminal offence vis-à-vis the minor described in Titles XIII-XV and XVIII-XX of Book 2 of the Penal Code;
      (3) to a custodial sentence of two years or more;
   (d) the serious disregard of the directions of the institution for family guardianship or obstruction of a care and protection order pursuant to the provision of Article 261;
   (e) the existence of a well-founded fear of neglect of the best interests of the child because of the parent reclaiming or taking back the child from others who had assumed the care and upbringing of the child.

2. A criminal offence in this Article includes being an accessory to and an attempt to commit a criminal offence.

Article 270

1. Non-consensual discharge of parental authority shall be pronounced only at the request of the other parent, one the relatives by blood or marriage of the children up to and including the fourth degree, the Child Care and Protection Board or the Public Prosecution Service.

2. In the case referred to in paragraph (1)(e) of the preceding Article, the non-consensual discharge of parental authority may further be applied for by the person who has assumed the care and upbringing of the child.

30 See footnote to Article 201(1).
Article 271

1. Where this is urgently necessary and no delay can be afforded, the district court may suspend, wholly or in part, a parent in whose respect the non-consensual discharge is applied for, pending the inquiry, from exercising parental authority over one or more of such a parent’s children. It shall have equal power as regards a parent whose consensual discharge is applied for in the instances referred to in Article 268(2) of this Book.

2. If the other parent also exercises parental authority, parental authority shall be exercised by such parent alone during the suspension.

3. When, in the latter case, the court considers a suspension of the parent who is to be discharged on a non-consensual basis insufficient to prevent the children from being subjected to such a parent’s influence, it may also suspend the other parent.

4. Where a suspension relates to both parents or a parent who exercises sole parental authority, the court shall charge an institution for family guardianship referred to in Article 60 of the Wet op de jeugdhulpverlening (Juvenile Assistance Act) with the interim guardianship over the child. It shall specify the powers to be conferred as regards the person and capital of this child.

5. The court orders referred to in this Article shall remain in effect until the decision in respect of the non-consensual or consensual discharge has become final and binding. However, the district court may revoke such an order with effect from an earlier date.

Article 271a

Instead of suspension of both parents or a parent in exercising parental authority and a provision for interim guardianship referred to in Article 271, the district court may issue a care and supervision order referred to in Article 254 of this Book in respect of the child.

Article 272

1. On the basis of facts which may give rise to a non-consensual discharge or to a consensual discharge referred to in Article 268(2) of this Book and if this is urgent and no delay can be afforded, the children’s court judge may suspend the parents, wholly or in part, in their exercising parental authority over a child and charge an institution for family guardianship as referred to in Article 60 of the Wet op de jeugdhulpverlening (Juvenile Assistance Act) with interim provisional guardianship over a child.

2. The children’s court judge shall give an order on the application of the Child Care and Protection Board or the public prosecutor. It shall specify the powers to be conferred with regard to the person and capital of this child and the duration of the measure.

3. The measure shall lapse on expiry of a six-week period unless an application for non-consensual or consensual discharge of parental authority was made prior to the end of the term. In the latter case the measure shall remain in force until a decision made by an order in respect of the non-consensual or consensual discharge of parental authority has become final and binding, unless the judge has laid down a shorter term.

4. The measure can be repealed or varied by the children’s court judge who ordered it, unless an application referred to in paragraph (3) has been lodged. In that case the decision shall be taken by the judge before whom this application is pending.

Article 272a

The district court which rejects an application for non-consensual or consensual discharge of parental authority is competent to place a minor under supervision as referred to in Article 254 of this Book.

Article 273

Repealed

Article 274

1. If, after consensual or non-consensual discharge of parental authority of one of the parents, the parents exercise joint parental authority, joint parental authority shall from then on only be exercised by the other parent.

2. In the case of consensual or non-consensual discharge of parental authority of a parent who exercises sole parental authority, the other parent may request the district court at any time to be charged with the exercise of parental authority. This request shall be rejected only if there is a well founded fear that the best interests of the children would be neglected if it were to be granted.

3. The district court which has rejected a request referred to in the preceding paragraph may always vary such an order. It will only do so, however, at the request of the parent involved and only on the ground that circumstances existed which the court could not take into account when issuing the order.

Article 275

1. If, from then on, the other parent does not exercise parental authority alone, the court shall appoint a guardian over the minors.
2. Each person who, during the investigation, may exercise guardianship may request the court in writing to be charged with guardianship.

3. In the case of consensual discharge with application of Article 268(2)(d) of this Book, the district court shall preferably appoint a person or persons who have cared for and raised the child for one year or more at the time of the request as a guardian, provided they have capacity to act as a guardian.

Article 276

1. If a consensually or non-consensually discharged parent administered the capital of the children, such a parent shall also be ordered to account for the administration to the successor in such administration.

2. Where the children have property in common but become subject to the custody of different persons, the district court may designate any of these persons or a third person to administer such property until its division. The designated administrator shall give such guarantees as the district court requires.

3. Article 253k shall apply to the administration pursuant to the preceding paragraph, if one of the parents is designated as administrator, otherwise §10 of Section 6 of this Title shall apply. The administrator shall have the exclusive right to avoid legal transactions of minor owners for the administration or disposal with regard to property which is subject to administration.

Article 277

1. Where the district court is convinced that a minor may again be confided to his or her consensually or non-consensually discharged parent, it may reinstate such a parent with parental authority on the parent’s request. If parents who are not married to each other wish to exercise joint parental authority, they shall both make the application thereto.

2. If, on the occasion of the non-consensual or consensual discharge of parental authority the other parent was vested with parental authority, the district court shall not vest the consensually or non-consensually divested parent who alone makes the application referred to in paragraph (1) with parental authority, unless the circumstances have changed since the order vesting the other parent with the responsibility or, unless at the time of the order, it was based on incorrect or incomplete information. Article 253e of this Book applies mutatis mutandis.
Article 278

1. An application referred to in Article 277 of this Book may also be made by the Child Care and Protection Board.
2. Pending the investigation both the Child Care and Protection Board and the parent to be reinstated may apply to the district court to stay a decision until the end of a trial period of no more than six months to be specified by the court; during such a period the child shall stay with the parent whose parental authority was reinstated. The district court may at any time bring the trial period to an end.

Section 6

The declaration must be made within fourteen days or, if the person who makes the declaration is outside the Netherlands, within two months after having been served with notice of the appointment. Any interested person and the Child Care and Protection Board may give instructions for such service.

(b) for a guardian who, after having declared to be willing to accept the guardianship, is appointed by the district court: on the date on which the decision for the appointment has become binding and final or, where it is declared enforceable notwithstanding appeal, on the day after the decision for the appointment has been issued or dispatched. An oral declaration of willingness shall be made before the district court which makes the appointment; a written declaration of willingness shall be lodged at the clerk’s office where the appointment will take place.
Article 281

1. Guardianship shall end on the date on which the court order has become binding and final whereby:

   (c) the guardianship in accordance with Article 299a or 302(4) of this Book has been vested in another guardian.

2. Where a court order referred to in paragraph (1) has been declared enforceable notwithstanding appeal, the guardianship shall end on the day after the court order has been issued or dispatched.

Article 282

1. On the uniform request of the guardian and another person who has a close personal relationship with the child, the court may determine that the guardianship shall be exercised by them jointly.

2. For the duration of the joint exercise of guardianship both persons referred to in paragraph 1 shall be considered to be guardians.

3. The request shall be rejected if there is a well founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected were it to be granted.

4. Joint exercise of guardianship is not possible with regard to a temporary guardianship referred to in Articles 296 and 297. Legal persons shall not qualify for guardianship.

5. Article 253a applies mutatis mutandis.

6. By derogation from Article 336 two guardians who exercise joint guardianship both have the duty and the right to care for and raise the minor child. Article 253w applies mutatis mutandis in respect of both as long as the joint guardianship continues.

7. A request as referred to in paragraph (1) may be accompanied by a request to alter the surname of the child to that of one of the guardians. Such a request shall be rejected, if:
   (a) a child aged twelve or older did not agree to the request at the hearing;
   (b) the request for a joint guardianship is rejected; or
   (c) the best interests of the child oppose it being granted.

Article 282a

The joint exercise of guardianship shall end on the date on which the court order has become final and binding by which the exercise of joint guardianship is terminated or pursuant to which the guardianship has ended pursuant to Article 281, and on the death of one of the guardians.
Article 282b

been lawfully made unless such appointment has been delegated to the district court.

Article 296

1. Where a provision is necessary when the commencement of the guardianship is awaited in accordance with Article 280 of this Book, the sub-district court shall appoint a guardian for the duration of such circumstances.

2. As soon as such circumstances have ceased, the appointment as guardian shall be brought to an end by the sub-district court at the request of the person whom he or she replaces.

Article 297

1. The sub-district court shall likewise appoint a guardian when a provision is necessary because of:
   (a) the guardian being in a situation in which it is temporarily impossible for him or her to exercise custody; or
   (b) the existence or abode of the guardian is unknown; or
   (c) the guardian fails to exercise custody.

2. Where there are grounds for appointment on the basis of paragraph against the appointed guardian, for work performed by the latter.

3. As soon as the circumstances mentioned in paragraph (1) have ceased, the appointed guardian shall be discharged by the sub-district court upon his or her own request or at the request of the person whom he or she replaces unless there is a well-founded reason to fear that the best interests of the children would be neglected were it to be granted.

4. If, in the case of the exercise of joint guardianship, one of the circumstances referred to in paragraph (1) occur as regards either guardian, the other guardian shall exercise sole custody over the children. As soon as

In this case the judge shall preferably appoint the person whose appointment is requested as a guardian provided the latter has capacity to exercise the guardianship.
5. Where an application referred to in paragraph (1) is made, Article 336a(2) of this Book shall remain inapplicable until a decision on the application has become final and binding.

2. Where a marriage of the deceased leaving minor children was judicially dissolved or the deceased was judicially separated, the registrar of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships shall also, if the other parent is still alive, inform the sub-district court of such circumstances; the latter shall then send the notification received to the district court which has decided on the application for a dissolution of the marriage or for a judicial separation.

§4. Guardianship of Legal Persons

2. Insofar as the consent required pursuant to the preceding paragraph is not obtained, it may be substituted for that of the district court at the request of the guardian. Such a request shall be granted only if the district court considers this in the best interests of the minor.
3. In the case of rejection of the request, the court order shall be in force for a period not to exceed six months to be specified by the court. Where, however, a request for a care and supervision order in respect of the child is made prior to the end of this period, or for a non-consensual discharge of the custody of the guardian or an application referred to in Article 299a of this Book is pending, the order shall remain in force until a decision has been made on the request by a final and binding order.

4. The inventory of the estate shall include a report on the changes in the composition of the estate until the time when it is prepared.

Article 339

1. When the value of the property of the minor does not exceed €11,250 the guardian may lodge a declaration in respect thereof instead of a description of a signed inventory of the estate in accordance with the form adopted by the Minister of Justice. Such a declaration will suffice when the guardian acts for two or more minors of the same parents and the property of the minors does not exceed €22,500 in value in the aggregate.

2. The sub-district court may always specify that an inventory of a minor’s estate as at the date of its order, shall be prepared and lodged in accordance with the preceding Article mutatis mutandis.

Article 341

1. In the inventory of the estate or in the declaration referred to in Article 339 of this Book the guardian must state what he or she has to claim from the child. In the absence hereof, the guardian will not be able to exercise a right of action prior to the former’s majority.

Article 344

1. Insofar as the sub-district court does not otherwise provide, a guardian shall deposit the bearer securities of the minor in the safe custody of De Nederlandsche Bank or a credit institution which is registered pursuant to Article 52 of the Wet toezicht kredietwezen 1992 (Credit System (Supervision) Act 1992) (Staatsblad, Bulletin of Acts and Decrees 1992, No. 722).
2. The sub-district court may give directions on the manner of safekeeping of bank savings books and monies of the minor. When the sub-district court must give approval for effecting a division, it may give directions as referred to herein. The sub-district court designated in Section 2 of Title 3 of Book 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall have jurisdiction in the matter.

3. The provisions in the preceding paragraphs shall apply to transferable bearer securities, bank savings books and monies to which the minor is jointly entitled with one or more other persons, when these are held by the guardian.

Article 345

Article 348

1. A guardian may not acquire for the account of a minor any outstanding debt or a limited right to property of the minor from a third person without the approval of the contract by the sub-district court.
2. Where there is no such approval the contract shall be null and void.

1. A guardian who acts at law or appeals a judicial decision as claimant for the minor without authorisation of the sub-district court shall be declared to lack locus standi.
2. Without authorisation of the sub-district court the guardian may not acquiesce in a claim instituted against the minor or in a given decision.

Article 350

1. The guardian shall ensure the effective investment of the estate of the minor.
2. The guardian requires the sub-district court’s authorisation for any investment of the minor’s monies. Nevertheless the guardian may, insofar as the sub-district court does not rule otherwise, invest monies in the minor’s name without such authorisation at a credit institution registered pursuant to Article 52 of the Wet toezicht kredietwesen 1992 (Credit System (Supervision) Act 1992) in accounts earmarked for investment of monies of minors, with a stipulation that the monies are repaid only upon authorisation of the sub-district court.

Article 351

1. When the estate or part of the estate of a minor is invested in a commercial, agricultural or industrial enterprise, the guardian may only continue the business for the account either of the minor alone or of such a minor together with others with authorisation of the sub-district court.

2. Without authorisation of the sub-district court the guardian may not leave an estate undivided to which the minor is entitled.

Article 357

If the expenditure of a measure ordered on behalf of a minor by a judicial decision is charged to the minor’s account following a directive of the sub-district court, and, as a result, such cost needs to be paid out of the minor’s estate, the authorisation of the sub-district court referred to in Article 345 of this Book shall be substituted by the court’s designation of the property that must be sold or encumbered.

Article 358

1. The guardian may charge the minor all necessary, proper and properly justified expenses.
2. If the sub-district court specifies an amount which may annually be spent on the care and upbringing of the minor or for the cost of administration of the minor’s estate, the guardian need not present itemised accounts how that amount was spent.
3. The sub-district court may grant a guardian a remuneration payable by the minor if it considers this necessary having regard to the extent to which the administration constitutes a burden. Apart from this case, a guardian may not charge remuneration for him or herself unless it is conferred by a parent to the guardian by the instrument of the guardian’s appointment by a parent.

Article 359

1. The sub-district court may at any time impose an obligation on the guardian, at the request of the other guardian or ex officio, to lodge at the clerk’s office of the district court an account for the administration of the minor’s property, annually or once every two or three years.

Article 364

1. Security put up by the guardian shall be released as soon as the guardian’s account has been approved or as soon as any rights of action relating to the guardian’s administration have been prescribed in accordance with Article 377 of this Book.
2. In that case any mortgage registrations shall be deregistered at the expense of the minor and rights of pledge to registrations in the debt registers for National debentures shall be cancelled.

Article 367

The Child Care and Protection Board which receives such information from the sub-district court shall, within six weeks from the date of such information, apply to the district court, after having examined the other conduct of the guardian vis-à-vis the minor, to consider whether this should result in the non-consensual discharge of custody of the guardian on the basis of Article 327(1)(b) of this Book.

Article 368

Repealed

Article 369

If minors who are subject to guardianship of different guardians have joint property, the sub-district court of the residency of one of the minors may designate one of the guardians or a third person to conduct the administration over such property until its division. The designated administrator shall give the guarantees required by the court.
2. Where several courts are competent as described in paragraph (1), this shall lapse when one court has acted in accordance with it.
3. The provisions in respect of the administration by a guardian apply _mutatis mutandis_ to the administration. The administrator shall exclusively be entitled to nullify legal transactions of the minor relating to the management or disposal of property subject to administration.

Article 370

1. At the request of the guardian or _ex officio_, the sub-district court may place an estate or a part of an estate of a minor under administration, including the benefits, for the duration of the minority, where this is regarded necessary in the best interests of the minor. Where guardianship is exercised jointly, the placement under administration shall only be decided, if both guardians make the request jointly.

2. The sub-district court shall appoint the administrator and specify the remuneration to which the administrator will be entitled. On instituting the administration it may provide that the guardian must indemnify the minor, in full or in part, for the cost caused by the estate being placed under administration, including the remuneration and that the guardian, save for the right of recovery against the administrator, shall be liable for the latter’s conduct vis-à-vis the minor. In the case of the exercise of joint guardianship, these obligations shall be imposed on both guardians.

3. The provisions on the administration of a guardian shall apply to the administration _mutatis mutandis_. The administrator shall exclusively be entitled to nullify legal transactions of the minor pertaining to the management or disposal of property subject to administration.

4. The sub-district court shall specify which payments the administrator must make to the guardian from the property subject to administration and its benefits and, in the case of joint guardianship, to the guardians for the care and upbringing of the child or for management of property not subject to administration. 5. The administrator must at all times provide any information which the sub-district court requires.

6. 7. Disputes which arise in respect of the account shall be settled by the sub-district court.

8. Where one of the parties fails to give its cooperation in respect of such an account, Articles 771 _et seq_ of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply.

When the guardian no longer lives in the district or is succeeded by a guardian in another district, the clerk of the court shall, without delay, send the records relating to the guardianship to the clerk of the court in whose district the guardian or successor-guardian resides, with mention of the latter’s residency.

§11. Accounting for the Administration at the End of the Guardianship

Article 372

When the administration ends the guardian shall account therefor without delay. The guardian shall pay for the costs. These are, however, for the account of the minor unless the administration ends on account of the non-consensual discharge of custody of the guardian. To the extent that the cost cannot be recovered from the minor, these shall be for the account of the parents and, when no recovery from them is possible, for the account of the State.

Article 373

1. The guardian shall account either to the person who has attained the age of majority or to the heirs of the minor when the latter has died or to the guardian’s successor in the administration.

Article 375

When a person, who has attained majority, addresses or performs a legal transaction vis-à-vis or with the guardian concerning the guardianship on the account thereof, such a transaction may be nullified, if it is made prior to the lodging of the account. A right to claim nullification may only be made on the part of the person who has reached the age of majority.

Article 376

No interest shall be payable by the minor to the guardian on what remains due so long as after the closure of the accounts the minor is not in default with the payment of what is due.

Article 377

Any right of action on account of the conducted administration during the guardianship, both on the part of the minor and of that of the guardian, is prescribed by the expiry of five years from the date on which the guardianship of the latter has ended.

1. The child and the parent in whom no parental authority is vested have the right to contact with each other.
2. On the application of the parents or either one of them, the court shall issue an arrangement for exercising the right of contact, whether or not for a specific period or shall disallow a right of contact, whether or not for a specific period.
3. The court shall only disallow a right of contact if:
   (a) contact would cause a serious detriment to the mental or physical development of the child, or
   (b) the parent is manifestly unfit or clearly must be considered not to be in a position to have contact, or
   (c) a child aged twelve or older has demonstrated, on its being heard, to seriously object against contact with the parent, or;
   (d) contact is otherwise contrary to the paramount interests of the child.
4. The district court is competent to take cognisance of applications referred to in this Article. If, however, proceedings for the granting of custody are pending at the sub-district court, an application to provide for an arrangement of contact in connection therewith may be made to the sub-district court.

Article 377b

1. A parent in whom parental authority is vested must inform a parent not vested with parental authority of important matters as regards the person and estate of the child and must consult such a parent, where necessary through the intermediary of third persons, on decisions to be taken in his or her respect. This may be regulated by the court at the request of the parent.
2. If this is required in the best interests of the child, the court may, both on the application of the parent in whom parental authority is vested and ex officio, provide that paragraph (1) of this Article will remain inapplicable.
3. Articles 377a(4) and 377e of this Book shall apply mutatis mutandis.
Article 377c

1. Without prejudice to the provision in Article 377b of this Book, third persons who, on account of their profession, dispose of information in respect of important facts and circumstances relating to the person of the child or the child’s care and upbringing shall inform a parent who is not vested with parental authority, when so requested, unless they would not equally provide such information to the person in whom authority over the child is vested or with whom the child has ordinarily abode or unless provision of the information is against the best interests of the child.

2. If the information is refused, the court may order, on the application of the parent referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article, that the information be provided in a manner to be specified by it. In any event the court shall refuse the application if provision of the information is against the best interests of the child.

3. Article 377a(4) of this Book applies mutatis mutandis.

Article 377d

1. Without prejudice to the provision in the second paragraph of this Article, the right of contact may be exercised as soon as the court order concerned has become final and binding or, in the case where it was declared enforceable notwithstanding appeal, as from the date of the issue or dispatch of the order.

2. The right of contact may be exercised, if the court order includes or included an order on parental authority, no earlier than at the time when parental authority has commenced for the other parent or custody for the guardian.

Article 377e

1. On the application of the parents or either one of them the district court may vary the right of contact and a mutual contact arrangement made by the parents on the ground of a change of circumstances since then or that, when the decision was taken, it was based on incorrect or incomplete information.

2. An application to vary a decision in respect of a right of contact shall be made to the sub-district court when the decision to be varied was made by the sub-district court.
Article 377f

1. Without prejudice to the provisions of Article 377a, the court may order provisions for a right of contact between the child and the person who has a close personal relationship with the child. The court may disallow the application if it is against the best interests of the child that it be granted or if the child aged twelve or older objects.

2. The provisions of Articles 377a(4), 377d and 377e of this Book apply mutatis mutandis.

Article 377g

If it appears to the court that a minor aged twelve or older would appreciate this, it may issue a decision, ex officio, on the basis of Articles 377a, 377b or 377f or vary it on the basis of Article 377e of this Book. The same shall apply if the minor has not yet reached the age of twelve but may be considered able to reasonably appraise his or her interests in the matter.

Article 377h

1. Where parental authority is exercised jointly the court may, on the application of the parents or either one of them, make an arrangement for the right of contact between the child and the parent with whom the child does not have his or her ordinary abode or in respect of the provision of information to, or the consultation with, such a parent as is referred to in Article 377b(1) or with regard to the provision of information referred to in Article 377c(1) and (2) of this Book.

2. Articles 377a(4), 377e and 377g of this Book apply mutatis mutandis.
TITLE 16
APPOINTMENT OF A CURATOR

Article 378

1. The district court may appoint a curator over a person who has attained the age of majority:
   (a) on account of a mental disorder as a result of which the mentally disturbed person, whether or not intermittently, is unable or is impeded from looking after his or her interests properly;
   (b) on account of being a spendthrift;
   (c) on account of habitual alcohol abuse as a result of which such a person:
       (1) does not properly attend to his or her interests;
       (2) repeatedly causes a public offence; or
       (3) endangers his or her own safety and that of others.

2. A curator may already be appointed before a person has reached the age of majority, if it is to be expected that one of the grounds enumerated in the preceding paragraph for the appointment of a curator will apply to a minor when he or she attains the age of majority.

Article 379

The appointment of a curator may be applied for by the person involved, the spouse or other life-companion, registered partner, one of the relatives by blood or marriage up to and including the fourth degree, a guardian or the Public Prosecution Service.

Article 380

1. The court before which an application for the appointment of a curator is or was last pending may, when so requested or ex officio, appoint an interim administrator; the court order shall state the time when it will enter into force.

2. The court shall provide in its order the powers of the administrator. It may delegate the administration of specific or all property to the administrator. The court may also confer other powers to the administrator but not those which a curator does not have. To the extent the court does not otherwise provide the person for whom the appointment of a curator is applied for may not perform acts of administration and disposal as regards such property without the co-operation of the administrator.

3. The court order may also provide that, during such administration and the curatorship, if this follows there shall be no recourse possible against property subject to administration for debts made by the person for whom the appointment of a curator is applied for after publication of the appointment.

4. The court order may be varied or revoked at any time by the court before which the application for the appointment of a curator is or was last pending.

5. The administrator shall be entitled to a remuneration of five percent of the net proceeds of the property administered by him, unless the sub-district court, for special reasons, specifies a different amount.

Article 381

1. The appointment of a curator shall take effect from the date on which it is ordered. In the instance referred to in Article 378(2) the appointment of a curator shall take effect from the time at which the person over whom a curator is appointed attains majority.

2. From these times the person over whom a curator is appointed will not have legal capacity to perform legal transactions insofar as the law does not otherwise provide.

3. A person over whom a curator is appointed has legal capacity to perform legal transactions with the consent of the curator insofar the latter may perform such legal transactions for the person over whom a curator is appointed. The consent may be granted only for a specific legal transaction or for a specific purpose. Consent for a specific purpose must be given in writing.

4. Articles 453 and 454 of this Book apply mutatis mutandis with regard to matters relating to the care, nursing, treatment and counselling of a person over whom a curator is appointed.

5. The person has legal capacity in respect of monies made available by the curator for support in accordance with such a purpose.

6. In matters relating to the appointment of a curator the person over whom a curator is appointed has legal capacity to act judicially and to appeal from a decision.

Article 382

A person over whom a curator is appointed on account of being a spendthrift or a habitual abuser of alcohol remains legally capable to perform acts relating to family law insofar as the law does not otherwise provide.
Article 383

1. At the time when pronouncing its orders the court shall appoint the curator or, where it was not yet sufficiently informed, as soon as possible thereafter.

2. When appointing a curator the court shall act in accordance with the explicit preference of the person involved unless there are well-founded reasons which oppose such an appointment.

3. Unless the preceding paragraph is applied, the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion shall preferably be appointed as curator where the person over whom a curator is appointed is married, has entered into a registered partnership or has a life-companion. Where the preceding sentence is not applicable, one of the parents, children, brothers or sisters will preferably be appointed. Where a person over whom a curator is appointed marries, enters into a registered partnership or finds another life-companion, the spouse who is not subject to a curator, the registered partner or the other life partner may apply to be appointed in lieu of the present curator.

4. The duties of the curator commence on the day after the decision taken for the appointment is issued or dispatched. As from that day the interim administration shall end. The interim administrator must account for the administration to the curator before the sub-district court; where the interim administrator is an appointed curator, the former shall account to the sub-district court. If the curator was appointed before the person over whom he or she was appointed a curator attained majority, the duties commence at the time when the appointment as curator takes effect.

5. Where an application for the appointment of a curator is rejected, the administration of the interim administrator shall end on the day following such a decision. Acts performed in the interim by the curator or with the curator’s consent shall remain binding for the person over whom a curator has been appointed.

Article 384

Where a court order for the appointment of a curator is nullified on appeal or on appeal to the Supreme Court and the application for the appointment of a curator is rejected, the duties of the curator shall end on the day following such a decision. Acts performed in the interim by the curator or with the curator’s consent shall remain binding for the person over whom a curator has been appointed.
Article 385

1. Except for the provisions in Articles 383 and 384, Articles 250 and 280(b), 281(1) (a) and (2), 297-299, 322(a) and (c), 324, 336 and 372-377 shall apply mutatis mutandis in the case of an appointment of a curator, provided that

   (a) in the case of appointment of a parent as curator no declaration of preparedness as referred to in Article 280(b) will be required;

   (b) sub-district court shall read district court, except in the case of the corresponding application of Article 250;

   (c) no powers shall vest in the Child Care and Protection Board;

   the curator may be discharged by the district court at any time on account of important reasons at the curator’s own request, at the request of a person over whom a curator has been appointed on account of being a spendthrift or habitual alcohol abuse, on the application of the public prosecution service or ex officio.

2. A curator who is not the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion or blood relative in the direct line of the person over whom a curator is appointed, may also apply for a discharge after having acted as curator for eight or more years; a discharge shall be granted as soon as the court considers itself able to appoint a suitable successor.

Article 386

1. The provisions in respect of the administration of a guardian shall apply mutatis mutandis to the administration by a curator. Unless different arrangements were made as to the remuneration when the appointment of a curator was made, the curator – which includes a parent-curator – shall be entitled to a remuneration of five percent of the net proceeds of the administered property. On account of special circumstances the sub-district court may provide, ex officio or at the request of the curator or of the person over whom a curator is appointed for a different remuneration for a specific or indeterminate period other than when the appointment of a curator was ordered or as provided by law.

2. The income of a person over whom a curator is appointed on account of a mental disorder must first be used for the sufficient care of the person involved.

3. For the purposes of Articles 365 to 367, inclusive, the Public Prosecution Service shall be substituted for the Child Care and Protection Board and the discharge referred to in Article 385(d), shall be substituted for the non-consensual discharge of custody of the guardian pursuant to Article 327(1) (b).

4. Where a curator has been appointed over a married person or a registered partner and the management and administration of their property and the property of the community is divided between the spouses or the registered partners other than according to the rules of law and the marriage contract, the court shall specify when ordering the appointment of a curator whether, and to what extent, such division shall also apply for the curator.

Articles 387-388

Repealed

Article 389

1. The appointment of a curator shall end when it is established by a final and binding judicial decision that the causes which gave rise to the appointment are no longer present.
2. An application thereto may be made by the same persons who can apply for the appointment of a curator.
3. The appointment of a curator shall further end when an administration referred to in Title 19 is instituted or a judicial protector referred to in Title 20 of this Book is appointed on behalf of the person involved by a final and binding judicial decision.

Article 390

1. All decisions for the appointment of a curator or for its termination, for the institution of an interim administration or a decision nullifying the appointment of a curator shall be published within ten days after such decisions could be implemented, for the account of the applicants, in the Government Gazette as well as in two daily newspapers to be specified by the court. Where the applicants fail to do so, they shall be jointly and severally bound to indemnify third persons for any loss.
2. The publication of the appointment of a curator at his or her own request or on application of the Public Prosecution Service shall be made on behalf of the curator, when so appointed when an appointment of a curator was decided or otherwise by the clerk of the court.

Article 391

Public registers shall be kept at the clerk’s office of the district court in The Hague in which legal facts relating to the appointment of a curator shall be recorded. It shall be provided by regulation which legal facts must be recorded and in what manner such records shall be made.
TITLE 17
MAINTENANCE

Section 1
General Provisions

Article 392

1. On the ground of a relationship by blood or marriage:
   (a) the parents;
   (b) the children;
   (c) the children-in-law, parents-in-law and stepparents, are obliged to provide maintenance.
2. Such an obligation exists only when the person entitled to maintenance is in need, except where it relates to parents and stepparents vis-à-vis their children and stepchildren and vis-à-vis their children referred to in Article 395a of this Book.
3. The persons mentioned in paragraph (1) need not provide maintenance insofar this may be obtained from the spouse or a former spouse or the registered partner or former registered partner in accordance with the provisions of Title 5A, 6, 9 or 10 of this Book.

Article 393

Repealed

Article 394

The begetter of a child that only has a mother and the man who, as life-companion of the mother, has agreed to an act which could have resulted in the begetting of the child, must provide, as if he were a parent, for the cost of the care and upbringing of the child or, after the child has reached the age of majority, for the cost of maintenance and study in accordance with Articles 395a and 395b. Thereafter there should only be such an obligation if the child is in need.

Article 395

Except for Article 395a of this Book, a stepfather need only provide maintenance during his marriage or his registered partnership to the minor children of his spouse or registered partner who are members of the family.
Article 395a

1. Parents must provide for the cost of maintenance and study of their children who have not yet reached the age of twenty-one.

2. During his or her marriage or registered partnership a stepparent is obliged, towards the children who have attained the age of majority that are members of the family of his or her spouse or registered partner who have not reached the age of twenty-one, to provide for the cost referred to in the preceding paragraph.

Article 395b

1. Where the court has specified the amount that a parent or stepparent or, in accordance with Article 394, the begetter or the man who is equated therewith in Article 394, must pay for the care and upbringing of his or her minor child or stepchild and such an obligation has been in effect until the child has attained the age of majority, then the judicial decision shall from that time onwards apply as a specification of the amount for maintenance and study as referred to in Article 395a of this Book.

2. The same shall apply, if with the application of Chapter VII of the Wet op de jeugdhulpverlening (Juvenile Assistance Act) the amount has been assessed which the parent or stepparent must pay to cover the cost of the measures referred to in Article 41f(2) of that Act to the National Bureau for Collection of Maintenance.

Article 396

1. The obligation of children-in-law and parents-in-law to provide maintenance shall lapse when the marriage of the child-in-law is dissolved.

2. There shall be no obligation vis-à-vis a child-in-law who is judicially separated and vis-à-vis a parent-in-law after the latter has remarried.

Article 397

1. In determining the amount due for maintenance by relatives by blood and marriage according to the law, account shall be taken of the needs of the person entitled to maintenance as well as the financial means of the person obliged to pay.

2. Where several relatives by blood or marriage must provide maintenance to the same person, each shall be obliged to pay part of the amount needed by the person entitled to maintenance. In determining such a part, account shall be taken of each one’s financial means and the relationship of each person to the person with the entitlement.
Article 398

1. When a person who must provide maintenance is unable to manage to provide the money required for such a purpose, the district court may order that he or she must take in the relative by blood or marriage to whom he or she owes maintenance and to provide the necessaries there.

2. Parents may always apply to the court for permission to acquit themselves of their obligation to provide maintenance to their needy child who has attained majority in the manner described in paragraph (1).

Article 399

The court may moderate the obligation of relatives by blood and marriage to provide maintenance where, having regard to the conduct of the person entitled to maintenance, the provision of maintenance may not reasonably be required or not in full; except for the following Section in respect of the provision for the cost of maintenance and upbringing of minor children and stepchildren.

Article 400

1. Where a person must provide maintenance to two or more persons and his or her financial means are insufficient to provide this in full to all of them, his or her spouse, former spouse, registered partner, former registered partner, parents, children and stepchildren take precedence over the children-in-law and the parents-in-law.

2. Contracts whereby maintenance due according to the law is renounced are null and void.

Article 401

1. A judicial decision or a contract regarding maintenance may be varied or revoked by a subsequent judicial decision when it no longer meets the legal standards on account of a change of circumstances. The preceding sentence does not apply to an application for a change of a period fixed by the court on the ground of Article 157 or which is incorporated in a contract referred to in Article 158.

2. The period fixed by the court on the ground of Article 157(3), (5) or (6), second sentence or incorporated in a contract referred to in Article 158 may, on the application of one of the former spouses, be changed in the case of such a far-reaching change of circumstances that it may not be required from the applicant, on bases of reasonableness and fairness, that it be maintained unchanged. Extension is not possible, if this is so provided by the court pursuant to Article 157(5). Article 157(5), second and third sentences applies mutatis mutandis to an application for an extension.

3. The parties may agree in writing that the first sentence of paragraph 1 shall apply to an application for a variation of a period incorporated in a contract referred to in Article 158.

4. A judicial decision regarding maintenance may also be varied or revoked, if it did not meet the statutory standards from the outset because the decision was based on incorrect or incomplete information.

5. A contract regarding maintenance may also be varied or revoked, if it was entered into with a gross misjudgement of the statutory standards.

Article 402

1. The court that specifies, varies or revokes the amount of a maintenance payment, shall also specify the date as from which this amount is or ceases to be due.

2. When determining the amount of maintenance, the court shall also specify whether it must be paid weekly, monthly or quarterly.

3. Should more than one instalment already have become due and payable on the date on which the decision may be enforced, or on which more than one instalment must be repaid, the court may also allow to payment in instalments thereof.

Article 402a

1. Amounts of maintenance fixed by judicial decision or by contract shall be changed annually, by operation of law, with a percentage to be specified by the Minister of Justice which, except for the provision in paragraphs (3) and (4), shall correspond to the difference in percentage between the index figure for wages as of the 30th September of any year and the corresponding index figure of the preceding year.

2. The change shall commence on the 1st January following the date mentioned in paragraph (1). The order whereby the percentage is fixed shall be published in the Government Gazette.

3. The index figure for wages shall be determined by Regulation.

4. The percentage change in the maintenance amounts may be rounded off to the nearest tenth of one percent. If the percentage difference referred to in paragraph (1), the second or following figure after the decimal point amounts to five, the amount shall, insofar as such figures are concerned, be rounded off downwards.

5. A change by operation of law may be excluded by judicial decision or by contract, wholly or for a specific duration. It may then also be provided that and in which manner the amount of maintenance will be changed periodically other than by operation of law.
6. In the decision whereby the second sentence of the preceding paragraph has been applied, and also thereafter, the court may regulate the manner and dates on which the person obliged to make a payment must provide information for the purpose of determining and changing the amount of maintenance to the person entitled to such a payment. Such decisions may be given and changed later on the application of the person obliged to make the payment or the person entitled thereto.

7. The exclusion of a change by operation of law may be revoked by judicial decision. Insofar as it relates to an exclusion without application of the second sentence of paragraph (5), such revocation may be made only in the instances referred to in Article 401 of this Book.

8. When a writ of execution for maintenance payment is enforced account shall be taken of any changes in the law at the time of such enforcement, or as the case may be, any changes in accordance with the second sentence of the fifth paragraph of this Article.

Article 403

No payment shall be due after the passing of a period of more than five years since the time the application is lodged.

Section 2

Provision for the Cost of Care and Upbringing of Minor Children and Stepchildren

Article 404

1. Parents must provide for the cost of care and upbringing of their minor children according to their means.

2. There shall be an equal obligation for a stepparent in the case of Article 395 of this Book.

Article 405

Repealed

Article 406

1. Where a parent or stepparent does not or does not properly perform his or her obligation to provide for the cost of care and upbringing, the other spouse or guardian may apply to the district court to specify the amount that such a parent or stepparent must pay on behalf of the child.

2. At the same time as deciding questions relating to custody, the district court may already specify the amount referred to in the preceding paragraph.
Article 406a

An application based on Article 394 may be made on behalf of a minor child by the person who has custody of the child. The parent or guardian of the child does not need the authorisation referred to in Article 349(1) and (2).

Articles 406b-40d

Repealed

Article 407

The district court may, on the application of a parent, alter the amount of a specific periodical payment for the cost of care and upbringing, in connection with the preceding provision for custody, at the same time as the district court’s decision with regard to the custody to be exercised over the children after dissolution of the marriage after a legal separation.

Article 408

1. Payment for the provision in the cost of care and upbringing or for the provision in the cost of maintenance and study in respect of which the amount has been laid down in a judicial decision, including a decision based on Article 822(1)(c) of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be made on behalf of the minor to the parent who cares for and raises the child or to the guardian or the child of age, respectively.

2. The National Bureau for Collection of Maintenance shall assume responsibility for the collection of maintenance when so requested by a person obliged to pay maintenance or on the joint request of a person with an entitlement and the person who is obliged to pay it. The person entitled to maintenance shall then hand the writ of execution to the Bureau. The handing over thereof authorises the Bureau to collect payment.

3. The cost of collection by the National Bureau for Collection of Maintenance may be recovered from the person from whom maintenance is due, in addition to the cost of judicial proceedings and execution. The recourse for costs shall be made by a change of the amount referred to in paragraph (1), according to rules to be laid down by Regulation.

4. Collection on the application of a person entitled to maintenance shall only be undertaken when the person with an entitlement at the time when the application is lodged has shown prima facie that the person obliged to pay maintenance has failed to fulfil his or her obligations as regards at least one periodical payment within at most six months preceding the lodging of the application. In such instances collection of amounts due shall be made from a date that does not predate the lodging of the application by more than six months.

5. Prior to proceeding to recover costs, the person obliged to pay maintenance must be notified by letter of the intention thereto, with the request to acknowledge receipt and the reason therefor, stating the amount including the costs of collection. The Board may proceed to collect on the fourteenth day after the letter has been sent.

6. Collection made on the application of the person entitled to maintenance shall end only if payment is regularly made for at least half a year to the National Bureau for Collection of Maintenance and there are no amounts still due as referred to in the second sentence of paragraph (4). The half-year period shall be doubled each time if a previous collection period had commenced at the request of the person entitled to maintenance.

7. Collection, which applies at the time when the child attains majority, shall be continued on behalf of the person of age unless it is brought to an end at his or her request.

8. The enforcement of a writ of execution as regards the payment of the cost of care and upbringing or maintenance and study shall be made with due observance of the change referred to in paragraph (3).

9. Any action for collection which has not been realised by the National Bureau for Collection of Maintenance ten years after the child has reached the age of twenty-one, may be brought to an end. The person entitled to maintenance shall be notified hereof in writing.

10. A payment by the person obliged to pay maintenance shall first serve to reduce the cost referred to in paragraph (3), subsequently to reduce interest due, if any, and, finally, to reduce the maintenance due and current interest if any.

11. The National Bureau for Collection of Maintenance shall ensure that monies distributed for the maintenance of children are paid to entitled persons. If payment is made to an entitled municipality, such a part shall be deducted from the money distributed to the Bureau as the Minister of Justice specifies to cover the costs involved with collection of the money.

12. Article 243(2) to (4), inclusive, apply mutatis mutandis.
TITLE 18
ABSENCE, MISSING PERSONS AND THE DETERMINATION OF DEATH IN SPECIFIC INSTANCES

Section 1
Administration in the Case of Absence

Article 409

1. When a person who has left his or her residency without having first arranged his or her affairs in relation to the administration of his or her property and there is a necessity for provisions to be made, wholly or partially, or for procuring representation of the absent person, the district court shall appoint an administrator, on the application of any interested persons or the Public Prosecution Service, to administer all or part of the property of the absent person and to take charge of that person’s other affairs.

2. For the purposes of this Section a person whose existence has become uncertain or who cannot be reached is equated with a person who has left his or her residency, also where it has not been established that the person has left his or her address.

Article 410

1. To the extent that the district court does not otherwise provide, Articles 338, 339, 340, 342-357, 358(1) and 359-363 of this Book apply \textit{mutatis mutandis}, provided that the administrator must lodge an account of his or her administration each year at the office of the clerk of the district court.

2. The administrator shall be entitled to a remuneration of five percent of the net proceeds of the property administered by him or her unless the sub-district court specifies a different amount for special reasons.

3. Approval of lodged accounts by the sub-district court shall not affect the right of the persons with an entitlement to apply, insofar as this is not unreasonable, for an account over the same period after the administration has ended.

4. The administrator may also act in respect of the interests other than those relating to the capital of the absent person except to the extent that this is excluded by the district court.

5. The district court may at any time discharge the administrator and replace him or her by another.
Article 411

The administration shall end:
(a) by a joint decision of the beneficiary and the administrator;
(b) by a termination with one month’s notice to the administrator by the beneficiary;
(c) when the death of the beneficiary is established.

Section 2
Persons whose Existence is Uncertain

Article 412

1. When a person whose existence is uncertain becomes entitled to a share in an inheritance or a legacy to which other persons would be entitled if the person should not be alive, the district court shall authorise such other persons, on their application, to exercise their right as an heir or legatee.
2. Where necessary, the district court may order that public notice be given and prescribe means for the preservation of rights on behalf of the interested persons.
3. If it should appear, after authorisation is granted, that the missing person was alive on the date on which the deceased’s estate fell open, a claim may be made for the return of property of which possession was taken and of the benefits, on the basis of and subject to the restrictions indicated hereinafter on the certificate of presumed death.
4. Paragraphs (1) to (3), inclusive, apply mutatis mutandis to a life insurance payment to which the person whose existence is uncertain is the first named beneficiary.

Article 413

1. Where a person’s existence is uncertain and the time indicated in the following paragraph has expired, any interested person may apply to the district court to order them to give notice to the missing person to appear in order to show that he or she is still alive and, where this is not so shown, to declare that there is a legal presumption of death of the missing person.
2. (a) The time referred to in the preceding paragraph shall be five years as from the departure of the missing person or since the last sign of his or her being alive.
(b) The period shall be shortened to one year, if the person involved was missing during such period and the circumstances make it likely that he or she is dead.
3. An order to publish notice to the missing person and a declaration of legal presumption of death referred to in paragraph (1) may also be applied for by the Public Prosecution Service.

Article 414

1. The district court shall specify the day and hour at which the missing person must be given notice to appear. A period of one month or so much longer as the district court may order shall apply for such notice. The convening notice shall be made in accordance with Section 3 of Title 3 of Book 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

2. If neither the missing person nor anyone else appears to assert his or her right, according to the proper means, that the missing person is alive, the district court shall declare that there is a legal presumption of death, notwithstanding its right to once more give the order referred to in paragraph (1) and to hear witnesses and to order the lodging of evidentiary documents proving that the requirements of Article 413 were satisfied.

3. The order containing a declaration that there is a legal presumption of death shall mention the date on which the missing person is presumed to have died; the date following the day of the last sign of his or her being alive shall be deemed that date unless there are sufficient indications that the person was still alive for some time thereafter.

4. The district court may also order that the costs incurred by an applicant referred to in Article 413(1) be paid from the capital of the missing person.

Article 415

Repealed

Article 416

There shall be no higher remedy against court orders allowing an order to serve notice on a missing person.

Article 417

1. As soon as the court order declaring that there is a legal presumption of death has become final and binding, the clerk of the body before which the case was last pending shall send a true copy of the order to the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships of the residency from which the missing person left or, where there is no such residency left in the Netherlands, of the municipality in The Hague. From such an order the civil servant shall draw up an instrument of registration corresponding to the order, which shall state this explicitly.
2. This death certificate shall constitute binding proof ergo omnes that the missing person died on the date stated on the certificate.

Article 418

1. Before heirs and legatees of a person declared presumably dead are able to take possession of the property of the deceased’s estate, they must put up security, to the satisfaction of the sub-district court, for what they will have to hand over to the person declared presumably dead, should the latter return or to heirs or legatees, should they have a better right.

2. The heirs must, after taking possession, draw up a proper inventory of the estate.

3. Registered property may not be disposed of or encumbered, except for important reasons and with the leave of the sub-district court. Where no division is possible at a division of the estate without a sale, then it shall be placed under administration of a third person who shall distribute the income from such property in accordance with what has been determined in that respect at the division.

4. The division shall be made by an authentic instrument, which must also indicate what was distributed to the legatees or other beneficiaries.

5. The property of the deceased’s estate may not be squandered and no excessive gifts may be made therefrom.

6. Heirs and legatees must, when so requested, provide the sub-district court with the necessary information.

7. The obligations mentioned in this Article shall lapse at a time specified by the sub-district court and no later than on expiry of five years from the date on which the death certificate has been drawn up in accordance with Article 417. The district court, which gives the order that there is a legal presumption of death, may, having regard to the circumstances of the case, also specify therein that there shall be no obligation or obligations mentioned in this Article.

Article 419

An original or a certified true copy of the instrument whereby security is advanced, the inventory of the estate and the instrument of division must be lodged at the clerk’s office of the district court.

Article 420

1. When it appears to the sub-district court that an heir or legatee has not fulfilled the obligations imposed by the two preceding Articles, it may appoint an administrator for the property to which such an heir or legatee becomes entitled from the deceased’s estate. The administration ends when the sub-district court decides that the person involved has fulfilled his or her statutory obligations.

2. To the extent the sub-district court does not otherwise provide, Articles 338, 339, 340, 342-357, 358(1) and 359-363 of this Book apply mutatis mutandis to the administration of the administrator provided that the administrator must lodge an account for his or her administration each year at the office of the clerk of the district court.

3. The administrator shall be entitled to a remuneration of five percent of the net proceeds of the property administered by him or her unless the sub-district court specifies a different amount for special reasons.

4. The sub-district court may discharge the administrator at any time and replace him or her by someone else.

Article 421

The provisions in the preceding three Articles in respect of heirs who receive property from the deceased’s estate shall apply mutatis mutandis to the spouse or registered partner who receives property as a result of the dissolution of any community of property or the termination of any partnership. No security need be put up, however, for what is received in this respect.

Article 422

1. When the missing person returns or it appears that the date of death stated on the death certificate was incorrect, any person in the possession of or holding property of the missing person under administration pursuant to the preceding Articles must account for and hand over the property to the returned person or to the persons who then appeared to be entitled to the property.

2. Rights acquired by third persons in good faith shall be respected. However, where property is disposed of gratuitously, the court may order that compensation, to be determined with regard to the fairness of the situation, be granted to the persons with an entitlement for the account of the person who enjoyed the benefit of it.

3. Where the life of the missing person was insured for the benefit of third persons, these shall then retain their right to what was paid to them at the time of the return of the insured or which had already become due and payable at that time; in that case no other rights to payment may be derived from the insurance.
 Article 423

1. If, within five years from the date on which the death certificate was drawn up in accordance with Article 417 of this Book, it is proved that this certificate is incorrect, the persons who in good faith enjoyed the benefits of the deceased’s estate need only return half thereof; where the incorrectness is proved later, they need not return any benefits.

2. If only after more than ten years from the date on which the certificate is drawn up, it is proved that the certificate is incorrect, the persons who took possession of their property in good faith need only return the then still present property in its present state, in addition to the price of any disposed property or property substituted therefor; everything without any benefits or compensation for property no longer present and without an obligation to provide an account.

3. Any obligation to return property shall lapse on the expiry of twenty years from the date on which the certificate was drawn up.

Article 424

Article 425

1. If the wife left behind by a missing person entered into a new marriage while the missing person was still alive after the date mentioned as the date of death on the certificate drawn up in accordance with Article 417 of this Book, as worded at the solemnisation of the new marriage, the marriage with the missing person will nevertheless be deemed dissolved on the date mentioned in that instrument for the purpose of determining the legal status of her children born prior to the new marriage.

2. A person who was declared presumably dead whose parental authority over his or her minor child did not revive upon his or her return may apply to the district court to vest him or her with parental authority. When the latter, jointly with the other parent, requests to vest them with joint parental authority, in the best interests of their child, or where no provision for parental authority was made or a guardian is vested with custody, the application shall be rejected only if there is a well-founded fear that the best interests of the child would be neglected if the application were to be allowed. In other cases, the application will be granted only if the district court considers this desirable in the best interests of the child.
Determination of Death in Specific Instances

Article 426

1. If the body of a missing person could not be found but, taking all circumstances into consideration, his or her death may be deemed certain, the district court may declare the missing person to be dead, on the petition of the Public Prosecution Service or on the application of any interested person:
   (a) if the disappearance took place in the Netherlands;
   (b) if the disappearance took place during a voyage with a vessel or aircraft with its home base in the Netherlands;
   (c) if the missing person was of Dutch nationality;
   (d) if the missing person had his or her abode or residency in the Netherlands.

2. If a person has died outside the Netherlands and no death certificate was drawn up or can be lodged, the district court may declare such a person to be dead on the petition of the Public Prosecution Service or on the application of any interested person:
   (a) if the death took place during a voyage with a vessel or aircraft with its home base in the Netherlands;
   (b) if the deceased was of Dutch nationality;
   (c) if the deceased had his or her abode or residency in the Netherlands.

3. The documents lodged with the petition or application referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2) shall, as far as possible, provide the information mentioned in Article 427 of this Book.

Article 427

1. The court order whereby a person referred to in Article 426 is declared to be dead shall mention the date and, where possible, the hour of death. If the date of death is unknown, this shall be established by the district court and stated in the order. The district court shall take into account any proof and indications in respect of the circumstances under, or the time at, which the death must have taken place.

2. Furthermore, the court order shall state the surname, the forenames, the sex and, where possible, the place of death, the address of the deceased, the place and date of birth of the deceased and the surname and forenames of the person or persons with whom the deceased had been married or with whom the deceased had entered into a registered partnership.
Article 428

Article 429

The clerk of the body before which the case was last pending shall send a true copy of the order as soon as it becomes final and binding to the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships of the civil registry of the municipality of The Hague. The latter shall prepare an instrument of registration of the order which shall be recorded in the Register of Deaths.

Article 430

1. The instruments drawn up in accordance with Article 429 shall be deemed death certificates within the meaning of Article 19f(1).
2. Articles 422, 423 and 425 apply mutatis mutandis if a person returns who was declared dead, with application of Article 426, and also if it is proved that the date of death was stated incorrectly in the instrument referred in Article 429.
TITLE 19
ADMINISTRATION FOR THE PROTECTION OF ADULTS

Article 431

1. If a person who has attained majority is no longer able, temporarily or permanently, as a result of his or her physical or mental condition to properly attend to his or her proprietary rights and interests, the sub-district court may institute administration over all or part of the property which belongs or will belong to such a person with an entitlement thereto. Property belonging to a person who has attained majority as referred to in this Title includes property belonging to a matrimonial community of property in which such a person is married and which is not exclusively subject to the administration of the person’s spouse.

2. If, when a minor is due to attain majority, it can be expected that he or she will be in the state referred to in the preceding paragraph, the administration may already be instituted prior to his or her attaining majority.

3. The court with whom an application to grant an interim authorisation for a continued sojourn as referred to in the Wet bijzondere opnemingen in psychiatrische ziekenhuizen (Psychiatric Hospitals (Special Commitments) Act) or an authorisation referred to in Article 33(1) of that Act is pending, is also competent to take cognisance of an application for the establishment of administration.

Article 432

1. The establishment of administration may be applied for by the person entitled thereto, the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion, blood relatives in the direct line and those in the collateral line up to and including the fourth degree, the guardian, the court appointed guardian or protector as referred to in Title 20 of this Book or by the Public Prosecution Service.

2. The court before whom an application or a court appointment of a guardian is pending may, in the case of rejection, proceed to establish administration of its own initiative.

3. An application to establish administration on behalf of a person with an entitlement over whom a guardian was appointed shall be lodged with the court competent to decide on bringing the appointment of a guardian to an end. This court may, when bringing such an appointment to an end, also proceed, of its own initiative, to establish the administration.

33 See footnote to Article 201(1).

4. In the case of an order for the administration or an application thereto as referred to in Article 91 of this Book, paragraphs (2) and (3) shall apply mutatis mutandis.

Article 433

1. Unless it is otherwise provided when the establishment of administration takes place, the administration shall include those items of property which must be deemed to have been substituted property subject to administration as well as the benefits and other advantages accruing from the property subject to administration.

2. On the application of a person referred to in Article 432(1) or of an administrator or on the requisition of the Public Prosecution Service or ex officio, the sub-district court may extend the established administration to other property of the person with an entitlement thereto or release property from the administration. It may also specify transactions referred to in Article 441(2)(f) and revoke the designation of such transactions.

Article 434

1. In its orders as referred to in Articles 432 and 433(2) of this Book the court shall specify, ex officio, over which property the administration has been established or, as the case may be, which property is released from the administration.

2. The administration of property and the release of property from administration shall become operative the day after the court order is issued or despatched, unless the order states a later time of commencement. In the case referred to in Article 431(2) the administration shall become operative at the time when the person with the entitlement attains majority.

Article 435

1. The district court shall appoint an administrator at the time the administration is established or as soon as possible thereafter. In all other instances the sub-district court shall make the appointment. The district court shall satisfy itself of the willingness of the person to be appointed by it.

2. If necessary, an interim administrator may be appointed.

3. When appointing the administrator the court shall follow the explicit preference of the person with an entitlement unless there are well-founded reasons which oppose such an appointment.
4. Unless the preceding paragraph is applied, the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion is appointed administrator where the person entitled is married, has entered into a registered partnership or otherwise has a life-companion. Where the preceding sentence is not applied, one of the parents, children, brothers or sisters will preferably be appointed administrator. Where a person with an entitlement marries, enters into a registered partnership or enters into a relationship with a different life-companion, each may apply for the appointment of the spouse, registered partner or a different life-companion of the person with an entitlement instead of the present administrator.

5. Persons without legal capacity, persons from whom one or more items of property were placed under administration as referred to in this Title, persons who are declared bankrupt and as regards to whom a debt repayment scheme for natural persons apply, may not become an administrator.

6. Legal persons with full legal capacity may be appointed as administrator.

7. The person appointed becomes administrator on the day after the court order is issued or despatched unless the order states a later date.

Article 436

1. The administrator must prepare an inventory of the property subject to administration and lodge a true copy thereof at the office of the clerk of the competent district court pursuant to Article 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure as soon as possible.

2. Articles 339, 363 and 364 of this Book apply mutatis mutandis.

3. If registered property forms part of the administration, the administrator must procure registration of the judicial orders involved and his or her appointment in the public registers referred to in Section 2 of Title 1 of Book 3 as soon as possible. Where an enterprise or a share in a partnership firm has been placed under administration, the administrator must procure registration in the Commercial Register of the judicial orders involved for the appointment.

4. Unless the sub-district court otherwise decides, the administrator must open an account as soon as possible with a credit institution registered pursuant to Article 52 of the Wet toezicht kredietwesen 1992 (Credit System (Supervision) Act 1992), as referred to in Article 1(1)(a)(1) of the Wet toezicht kredietwesen 1992; the administrator must further use such an account whenever exclusively for payments made or received in the implementation of his or her duties.

5. The sub-district court may at any time procure that the administrator be ordered to be heard. The latter must provide the sub-district court with all information desired by it.
Article 437

1. The court may appoint two or more administrators where it considers this necessary in the interest of good administration.
2. Where there are two or more administrators each may, unless the court otherwise provides, severally perform all activities which form part of the administration.
3. Any difference in the case of a difference of opinion between the administrators shall be settled by the sub-district court at the request of either one of them. The sub-district court may also determine a splitting of the remuneration.

Article 438

1. During the administration the administrator and not the beneficiary has the right to administer property subject to administration.
2. During the administration the beneficiary may only dispose of property subject to administration with the co-operation of the administrator or, when the latter refuses to do so, with the authorisation of the sub-district court.

Article 439

1. If a legal transaction is invalid because it was performed notwithstanding the administration by or directed at the person entitled thereto, such invalidity may only be opposed to the other party where the latter was or ought to have been aware of the administration.
2. If property has been disposed of or encumbered by a person who was not competent thereto on account of the administration, such incompetency may only be invoked as against a transferee of the property or of a limited right thereto, where the latter was or ought to have been aware of such administration.

Article 440

1. No recovery against assets subject to administration may be made by a creditor, during the administration for debts arising from an act performed during the administration, otherwise than in conformity with Article 438(2), with a beneficiary when the creditor was or ought to have been aware of the administration.
2. If the administration relates to all property that qualifies therefor pursuant to Article 431(1), the preceding paragraph shall apply mutatis mutandis, with regard to property not subject to administration against which recovery would be possible.
Article 441

1. In the performance of his or her duties during the administration, the administrator shall represent the beneficiary, both judicially and extra-judicially. The administrator shall ensure that the capital of the beneficiary which is subject to administration is invested effectively insofar as it is not needed for payment for the care of the latter.

2. However, he or she needs the consent of the beneficiary or, where the latter is unable or refuses to give this, authorisation from the sub-district court for the following transactions:
   (a) the disposal of, and the entry into contracts for, the disposal of property subject to administration unless the transaction may be considered a normal act of administration or is made pursuant to a judicial order;
   (b) acceptance of a disposition or gift subject to burdens or conditions;
   (c) lending or borrowing\(^{34}\) of money or committing the beneficiary as a surety or several co-debtor;
   (d) agreeing that an estate to which the beneficiary is entitled will remain undivided for a specific period;
   (e) entry into a contract for terminating a dispute, except in the case of Article 87 of the Code of Civil Procedure, unless the object of the dispute does not exceed a value of €700;
   (f) other transactions specified on institution of the administration or thereafter.

3. The sub-district court may also grant the administrator a continuous authorisation to perform transactions referred to in the preceding paragraph, subject to such terms as it considers fit, and may change or repeal a granted authorisation at any time.

4. The administrator shall be competent, with the exclusion of the beneficiary, to demand the division of property of which an undivided share forms part of the administration. For a division, even where this is made pursuant to a judicial order, the administrator requires consent or authorisation in accordance with paragraph (2). Instead of granting authorisation, the sub-district court, with corresponding application of Article 181 of Book 3, may appoint a neutral person who in lieu of the administrator will represent the beneficiary at the division.

5. The administrator is competent, with the exclusion of the beneficiary, to accept a deceased’s estate to which the beneficiary becomes entitled. Unless the acceptance is made with the consent of the beneficiary, the administrator may not accept otherwise than subject to the privilege of inventory.

\(^{34}\) The term ‘lenen’ can be interpreted as meaning ‘to lend’ or ‘to borrow’.

Intersentia

179
Article 442

1. Where a person has performed a legal transaction as administrator, the rights and obligations of the other party shall be subject to the provisions in respect thereof in Title 3 of Book 3. Rules regarding the competence of an administrator and facts which are of importance for considering his or her competence may not be used against the other party, if the latter was or ought not to have been aware thereof.

2. The beneficiary is liable, without prejudice to the provision in Article 172 of Book 6, for all obligations arising from legal transactions performed by the administrator in that capacity in the name of the beneficiary. When the person designates property subject to administration which will provide sufficient recourse for the obligation, he or she need not pay the debt out of other capital.

Article 443

Prior to entering an appearance at court, the administrator may obtain authorisation from the beneficiary or, where the latter is unable or refuses to give this, from the sub-district court in order to account for his or her conduct.

Article 444

An administrator is liable towards the beneficiary if he or she fails in the care of a good administrator unless the failure is not attributable to the administrator.

Article 445

1. Unless other times were specified, the administrator shall account to the beneficiary annually and at the end of the administration for his or her administration and, at the end of his or her duties, to the successor. The accounts shall be rendered before the sub-district court.

2. If the beneficiary is unable to produce the account or it is uncertain who is the beneficiary, account shall be rendered to the sub-district court. Approval of such accounts by the sub-district court shall not bar a beneficiary from still demanding an account after the end of the administration over the same period where this is not unreasonable.

3. The sub-district court may exempt the administrator, either on request or ex officio, from the obligation to periodically account before it; it may also specify that the rendering of this account will only take place every number of years to be specified by it.
4. For the remainder, the provisions in §10 and §11 of Section 6 of Title 14 with regard to the rendering of an account for guardianship shall apply mutatis mutandis.

Article 446

1. Insofar as the sub-district court does not otherwise provide, the net benefits produced by any property, after deduction of the remuneration due, shall be distributed to the person with an entitlement when a periodic accounting is made. On the application of the beneficiary the sub-district court may fix other dates for the distribution.

2. At the final accounting for the administration, the administrator shall hand over all property to the person who will be competent, after the administrator, to administer the property. The administrator may suspend such a handing over until any balance due to the administrator is paid.

3. Where an account is rendered to the sub-district court, the net proceeds or the property to be handed over shall remain under the administration of the administrator, unless the sub-district court otherwise provides, until the beneficiary is able to take receipt or the uncertainty as to who is entitled has ended.

Article 447

1. Unless, on establishment of the administration, different provisions were made for the remuneration, the administrator or, where there are several administrators, the administrators jointly, shall be entitled to five percent of the net proceeds of any property subject to administration. On account of special circumstances, the sub-district court may, either on its own initiative or at the request of the administrator or the beneficiary, make other arrangements for the remuneration for a determinate or an indeterminate period different from what was provided on the establishment or by law.

2. Where there are two or more administrators, the remuneration due to them jointly shall be divided pro rata to the significance of the activities performed by each.

Article 448

1. The duties of the administrator shall end:
   (a) at the end of the administration;
   (b) by expiry of the period in the case of an appointment for a determinate period;
(c) by death, the applicability of a debt recovery scheme for natural persons or declaration of bankruptcy in respect of the administrator or the court appointment of a guardian over the administrator;
(d) by the institution of an administration as referred to in this Title over one or several items of property of the administrator;
(e) by a discharge granted by the sub-district court as from a date to be specified by it.

2. An administrator shall be discharged either at the request of the administrator or on account of important reasons or because the administrator no longer meets the requirements for becoming an administrator, and this at the request of a co-administrator, the beneficiary or the Public Prosecution Service or ex officio. Pending the investigation the sub-district court may make interim provisions for the administration and suspend the administrator.

3. A former administrator shall remain obliged to do whatever cannot be postponed without prejudice to the beneficiary until the person who succeeds the administrator with competence to administer the property has agreed to act as administrator. In the instances mentioned in paragraph (1)(c) this obligation shall be incumbent on his or her heirs, or, as the case may be, the administrator in a debt recovery scheme for natural persons or the curator, if they are aware of the administration; in the instance mentioned in paragraph (1)(d) this shall apply to the administrator to whom the administration referred to therein is delegated.

4. Article 384 of this Book shall apply mutatis mutandis.

Article 449

1. The administration ends on the expiry of the time for which it is instituted and by the death or court appointment of a guardian for the beneficiary.

2. The sub-district court may, if the causes occasions the administration no longer exist, bring the administration to an end on the application of the beneficiary or of the Public Prosecution Service. The order shall take effect as soon as it has become final and binding unless it specifies an earlier date of commencement.
TITLE 20
JUDICIAL PROTECTION ON BEHALF OF ADULTS

Article 450

1. If, as a result of his or her mental or physical condition, an adult is temporarily or permanently unable or impeded from properly attending to his or her interests of a non-financial nature, the sub-district court may grant a judicial protection order on behalf of such a person.

2. If it is to be expected that a minor will be in the situation referred to in paragraph (1) at the time when the minor attains majority, the protection order may be instituted prior to the minor attaining majority.

3. The protection order may also be instituted, if an adult is expected to be in the situation referred to in paragraph (1) within a foreseeable period.

4. The court at which a claim is pending for an order to grant a provisional authorisation or an authorisation for a continued commitment as referred to in the Wet bijzondere opnemingen in psychiatrische ziekenhuizen (Psychiatric Hospitals (Special Commitments) Act) or an authorisation as referred to in Article 33(1) of that Act may also take cognisance of a claim to institute a protection order.

Article 451

1. The protection order may be applied for by the person involved, the spouse, registered partner or another life-companion, the blood relatives in the direct line and those in the collateral line up to and including the fourth degree, the guardian, the court appointed guardian or the administrator as referred to in Title 19 of this Book. In the instance referred to in Article 450(3) of this Book the protection order may exclusively be applied for by the person involved.

2. Except from the instance referred to in Article 450(3) of this Book, a protection order may further be applied for by the Public Prosecution Service or by the person who commercially manages the institution where the person involved is permanently cared for. In the latter case the petition shall also state why the persons mentioned in paragraph (1), not including the blood relatives in the collateral line in the third and fourth degree, did not proceed to lodge an application.

35 See footnote to Article 201(1).
36 See footnote to Article 201(1).
3. The court at which an application for its appointment of a guardian is pending may, when rejecting this, proceed ex officio to institute a protection order.

4. An application to convert the appointment of a curator in a protection order on behalf of a person over whom a curator is appointed shall be made at the court which has competence to decide on the termination of the appointment of a curator. When terminating the appointment of a curator the court may also ex officio proceed to institute a protection order.

5. A protection order shall take effect on the day after the issue or despatch of the court order unless the order states a later time of commencement. In the case referred to in Article 450(2) of this Book the protection order takes effect at the time when the person involved attains majority.

Article 452

1. The court, which institutes a protection order, shall appoint a mentor or shall do so as soon as possible thereafter. In the case of replacement of a mentor, the appointment shall be made by the sub-district court. The court shall satisfy itself of the willingness, and form an opinion on the suitability, of the person to be appointed.

2. If necessary, an interim mentor may be appointed.

3. The court shall follow the explicit preference of the person involved when appointing the mentor unless there are well-founded reasons which oppose such an appointment.

4. Unless the preceding paragraph is applied and the person involved is married, has entered into a registered partnership or otherwise has a life companion, the spouse, registered partner or other life-companion shall preferably be appointed as mentor. Where the preceding sentence does not apply, preferably one of the parents, children, brothers or sisters will be appointed. Where a person involved marries, enters into a registered partnership or enters into a relationship with a different life-companion, each may apply for the appointment of the spouse, the registered partner or the other life companion in lieu of the present mentor.

5. If a provision has been made for an administration as referred to in Title 19 of this Book on behalf of the person involved, the administrator shall preferably be appointed as mentor where the administrator is a natural person.

6. The following persons may not become a mentor:
   (a) those who do not have legal capacity;
   (b) those on behalf of whom a court protection order is instituted;
   (c) legal persons;
   (d) a provider of assistance who is directly involved or who gives treatment;
(e) persons who form part of the management or staff of the institution where the person involved resides.

7. The duties of a mentor commence on the date after the order with the appointment is issued or despatched unless the order mentions a later date.

Article 453

1. Unless the law or a Convention gives rise to another provision, the person involved shall not be competent during the protection order to perform legal transactions in matters concerning his or her care, nursing, treatment and guidance programme.

2. As regards legal transactions referred to in paragraph (1), the mentor represents the person involved judicially and extra-judicially unless representation is excluded on the basis of the law or a Convention. The mentor may grant consent to the person involved to perform such legal transactions himself or herself.

3. As regards other acts than legal transactions regarding matters mentioned in paragraph (1), the mentor shall act in lieu of the person involved so far as the nature of the act involved so permits.

4. The protector shall counsel the person involved in matters which regard such a person and which are of a non-financial nature and shall look after his or her interests in respect thereof.

5. Where the person involved opposes an act of a far-reaching nature in matters referred to in paragraphs (2) and (3), this may take place only if it is clearly necessary in order to prevent a serious prejudice for the person involved.

Article 453a

1. Where the court considers this necessary it shall also decide that Article 246 of this Book shall apply mutatis mutandis.

2. During the life of the protection order the court may take a decision as referred to in paragraph (1) at the request of a person referred to in Article 451(1) and (2), at the request of the mentor or on the petition of the Public Prosecution Service or ex officio.

Article 454

1. The mentor must involve the person on whose behalf the protection order is instituted as much as possible in the implementation of the mentor’s duties. The mentor shall promote that the person involved performs legal transactions and other acts when the latter may be regarded to be able to reasonably assess his or her interests in the matter. The mentor shall act as a good mentor.
2. The mentor shall be liable towards the person involved in the case of failure in the care of a good mentor unless the failure is not attributable to the mentor.

Article 455

Article 457

1. A legal transaction performed in breach of Article 453 of this Book shall be voidable in accordance with paragraphs (2) and (3).
2. If the legal transaction is performed by or directed at the person involved, the fact that the transaction is voidable may only be claimed vis-à-vis a person who was or ought to have been aware of the court protection order; vis-à-vis such a person the person involved is presumed not to have had capacity.
3. If the legal transaction is performed by or directed at the mentor, the fact that the transaction is voidable may only be claimed vis-à-vis a person who was or ought to have been aware of the lack of capacity of the mentor.

Pending the investigation, the sub-district court may make interim provisions with regard to the protection order and suspend the mentor.
3. A former mentor shall remain obliged to do whatever cannot be postponed without causing prejudice to the person involved until someone else will have competence as regards matters referred to in Article 453(1) of this Book. The law applicable to the matrimonial property regime is designated by the provisions of the Convention on the Law applicable to Matrimonial Property Regimes, concluded in the Hague on 14th March 1978, of which the French and English text and its translation into Dutch were published in Tractatenblad (Treaty Series) 1988, No. 130.

Article 2

In the absence of a choice of law, the matrimonial property regime of spouses who both possess Dutch nationality is governed, in accordance with Article 4(2)(1) of the Convention mentioned in Article 1, by Dutch law, irrespective of whether they also possess another nationality.

Article 3

The consequences of the matrimonial property regime with regard to a legal relationship between a spouse and a third person is governed by the law applicable to the matrimonial property regime.

Article 4

A spouse whose matrimonial property regime is governed by a foreign law may lodge a notarial instrument for registration in the Register referred to in Article 116 of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code, containing a declaration that the matrimonial property regime is not governed by Dutch law.

Article 5

1. A third person who has performed a legal act during the marriage with the spouse whose matrimonial property regime is governed by foreign law may, if both he or she and both spouses had their habitual residence in the Netherlands at the time of the legal act, take recourse in respect of a debt arising from such legal act also after dissolution of the marriage as if there was a general community of property between the spouses under Dutch law.

---

2. The provision in paragraph (1) does not apply if, at the time of the legal act, the third person was or ought to have been aware that foreign law governed the matrimonial property regime of the spouses. This will be deemed to be the case if the legal act was performed on expiry of fourteen days from the registration of an instrument as referred to in Article 4 in the register referred to therein.

Article 6

Where, due to the application of the law of the country of its situs, designated pursuant to the rules of private international law, to a capital asset located abroad, one of the spouses has enjoyed an advantage vis-à-vis the other spouse to which he or she would not have been entitled if the law had been applied designated by the Convention mentioned in Article 1 of this Act, then the other spouse may claim that this be netted or claim compensation when an account is made between the spouses in connection with the termination or alteration of the matrimonial property regime.

Article 7

Article 92(3) of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code only applies in respect of recovery exercised in the Netherlands against

(a) a spouse whose matrimonial property regime is governed by Dutch law, or

(b) a spouse against whom recovery is possible pursuant to the provision of Article 5 of this Act.

Article 8

The provision in Article 119 of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code does not apply if the spouses designate a law governing their matrimonial property regime that is different from the law that was previously applicable thereto.

Article 9

Refers to the amendment of other regulations.

Article 10

The provision of Article 131 of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code also applies when the matrimonial property regime of the spouses is governed by a foreign law.
Article 10a

Whether, by reason of a divorce or a judicial separation, a spouse is entitled to part of the pension rights accrued by the other spouse is governed by the law applicable to the matrimonial property regime of the spouses, except for Article 1(7) of the Wet verevening pensioenrechten bij scheiding (Equalisation of Pension Rights Rules in the case of Separation).

Article 11

This Act may be cited as Wet conflictenrecht huwelijksvermogensregime (Private International Law (Matrimonial Property Regime) Act).

Article 12

1. This Act shall enter into force on a date to be specified by Royal Decree.
2. This Act applies to the matrimonial property regime of spouses who enter into a marriage after the date of its entry into force.
3. The provisions of this Act in respect of the designation of the applicable law apply to a matrimonial property regime of spouses who entered into a marriage prior to the date of the entry into force and who designate the law applicable thereto after such date.

Article 13

A designation by the spouses of the law applicable to their matrimonial property regime or an alteration of such a designation made prior to entry into force of this Act may not be considered invalid on the sole ground that such a designation was not then regulated by the Act. This does not apply to instances where the provisions of the Convention relating to the settlement of the conflict of laws and jurisdictions as regards to divorce and separation (Staatsblad (Bulletin of Acts and Decrees) 1912, No. 285) are applicable to the matrimonial property regime and the designation was made prior to 23rd August 1977, on which date that Convention ceased to be in force for the Netherlands.

Article 2

It is approved that, in accordance with Article 28 of the Convention mentioned in Article 1, a declaration is made for the Netherlands that, in accordance with the provision of Article 9(2) and (3) of the Convention the following will apply in respect of the relations of property law of the spouses in respect of third persons in the Netherlands:

(a) the consequences of the matrimonial property regime with regard to a legal relation between a spouse and a third person are governed by the law applicable on the basis of Dutch law in respect of the matrimonial property regime, save for the provisions in subparagraphs (b) and (c);

(c) a third person who has performed a legal transaction, during the marriage, with a spouse whose matrimonial property regime is governed by foreign law may take recourse in respect of a debt arising from such legal transaction also after dissolution of the marriage as if there is a general community of property between the spouses under Netherlands law if both he or she and both spouses at the time of such legal transaction had their habitual residence in the Netherlands;

(d) the provision of subparagraph (c) does not apply if the third person at the time of the legal transaction was or ought to have been aware that the matrimonial property regime of the spouses was governed by foreign law. This will be deemed to be the case if the legal transaction was performed after expiry of fourteen days after an instrument as referred to in subparagraph (b) was recorded in the register referred to in that subparagraph.

Article 4

PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW (PENSION RIGHTS EQUALISATION) ACT\textsuperscript{45} (SELECTED)

Article 1

7. Paragraph (4), (5) and (6) apply irrespective of the law applicable to the matrimonial property regime of the spouses.

8. If Dutch law applies to the matrimonial property regime of the spouses that law shall further apply to pensions pursuant to a foreign pension scheme which is not a pension scheme as referred to in paragraphs (4), (5) or (6) with the proviso that a right to payment as referred to in Article 2 only exists vis-à-vis the other spouse.

\textsuperscript{45} Act of 28\textsuperscript{th} April 1994, in force as of 1\textsuperscript{st} May 1995, last amended by Act of 13\textsuperscript{th} December 2000, Staatsblad (Bulletin of Acts and Decrees) 2001, No. 12.
PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW
JUDICIAL SEPARATIONS) ACT

Article 1

1. Whether dissolution of a marriage or judicial separation may be petitioned or demanded, and if so on what grounds, is determined,
   (a) when the parties have a common national law, by that law;
   (b) when there is no common national law, by the law of the country in which the parties have their habitual residence;
   (c) when the parties have no common national law, and no habitual residence in the same country, by Dutch law.
2. For the purposes of the preceding paragraph, the parties shall be considered to have no common national law, if one of them manifestly lacks a real societal connection with the country of the common nationality. In that case the common national law shall nevertheless be applied if a choice for that law was made jointly by the parties or such a choice remains uncontested by one of the parties.
3. If a party possesses the nationality of more than one country, his or her national law shall be understood to be the law of that country of which he or she possesses the nationality and with which, taking into account all the circumstances, he or she has the closest connections.
4. Notwithstanding the preceding paragraphs, Dutch law shall be applied if the parties jointly chose such a law or such a choice by one of the parties remains uncontested.

Article 2

1. A dissolution of a marriage or judicial separation obtained outside the Kingdom of the Netherlands, after a proper process shall be recognised in the Netherlands, if it has become absolute following a decision of a court or other authority having jurisdiction.
2. A dissolution of a marriage or judicial separation obtained outside the Kingdom of the Netherlands, which does not satisfy one or more of the conditions imposed by the preceding paragraph, shall nevertheless be recognised in the Netherlands, if it is evident that the other party in the foreign proceedings has, expressly or implicitly, either during the proceedings agreed with or acquiesced either during or after the proceedings in the dissolution or judicial separation.

Article 3

A dissolution of a marriage, effected outside the Kingdom of the Netherlands by a unilateral declaration of the husband alone, shall not be recognised, unless
(a) the dissolution of marriage in such form is in conformity with the law of the nationality of the husband; and
(b) the dissolution is legally valid at the place where it was effected; and
(c) it is evident that the wife has, expressly or implicitly, agreed with or acquiesced to the dissolution of the marriage.

Article 4

1. This Act shall enter into force as from the date after publication in the Staatsblad (Bulletin of Acts and Decrees).
2. This Act applies to the recognition of foreign decisions concerning dissolution of marriage or judicial separation which have been decreed after the date of entry into force.
Article 1

1. Whether legal familial ties are created between a child and the woman who gave birth to it and the man with whom she is or has been married, shall be determined according to the law of the state of the common nationality of the woman and the man or, where such a common nationality does not exist, according to the law of the state where both the woman and the man each have their habitual residence, or where such an habitual residence does not exist, according to the law of the state of the habitual residence of the child.

2. For the purposes of paragraph (1), the time of birth of the child or, if the marriage of the parents was dissolved prior to that time, the time of the dissolution shall be determinative.

3. Where the woman and the man possess more than one common nationality, they will be deemed, for the purposes of paragraph 1, not to have a common nationality.

Article 2

1. Whether the legal familial ties referred to in Article 1 may be annulled in legal proceedings for a declaration that the denial is well-founded, shall be determined according to the law which, pursuant to that Article, will apply in respect of the existence of such ties.

2. When a denial is not or will no longer be possible according to the law referred to in paragraph (1), the court may, where this is in the best interests of the child and on the joint application of the parents and the child for such a purpose, apply a law other than that mentioned in Article 1 or apply the law of the state where the child has its habitual residence at the time of the denial or Dutch law.

3. Notwithstanding the applicable law pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2), Article 212 of Book 1 of the Dutch Civil Code applies to the legal procedure referred to therein.

4. Whether legal familial ties between a child and the man who is or has been married to his or her mother may be annulled by a declaration of denial by the mother before the Registrar of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships shall be determined according to the applicable law pursuant to Article 1 in respect of the existence of such ties. Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), such a declaration may be made only if the man, who must also still be living and is or has been married to the mother, consents thereto and if legal familial ties are or will be established at the same time between the child and another man.

Article 3

1. Whether legal familial ties are created between a woman and a child to whom she gave birth outside of marriage, shall be determined according to the law of the state of the nationality of the woman. In any event such ties shall be created if the woman has her habitual residence in the Netherlands.
2. For the purposes of paragraph (1) the time of birth shall be determinative.
3. Paragraphs (1) and (2) shall not affect the application of the Convention on the establishment of maternal descent of natural children signed in Brussels on 12th September 1962 (Tractatenblad (Treaty Series) 1963, No. 93).

Chapter 2
Legal Familial Ties by Recognition or Judicial Determination of Paternity

Article 4

1. Whether recognition by a man causes legal familial ties to be established between him and a child shall be determined, where the right of the man and the conditions for recognition are concerned, according to the law of the state whose nationality the man possesses. If recognition is not or no longer possible according to such a law, the law of the state of the habitual residence of the child shall be determinative. If according to that law this is not or is no longer possible, then the law of the state whose nationality the child possesses shall be determinative. If according to such a law this will also not or no longer be possible, then the law of the state of the habitual residence of the man shall be determinative.
2. Notwithstanding the applicable law pursuant to paragraph (1), Dutch law shall determine whether a Dutch married man has the right to recognise a child of a woman other than his spouse.
3. The instrument of recognition and any later mention of the recognition shall state the law that was applied pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2).
4. Notwithstanding the applicable law pursuant to paragraph (1), the law of the state whose nationality the mother possesses or, as the case may be, the child possesses, shall apply to the consent of the mother or, as the case may be of the child, for the purposes of the recognition. If the mother or, as the case may be the child, possesses Dutch nationality, Dutch law shall apply. If the applicable law does not provide for recognition, the law of the state of the habitual residence of the mother or, as the case may be of the child, shall apply. Whether the consent, when this is absent, may be replaced by a judicial decision, shall also be determined according to the law applicable to the consent.

5. For the purposes of the preceding paragraphs the time of recognition and of the consent shall be determinative.

Article 5

Whether and in which manner a recognition may be annulled shall be determined, insofar as the right of the man and the conditions for recognition are concerned, according to the law applied pursuant to Article 4(1) and (2) and, where the consent of the mother or, as the case may be, of the child is concerned, according to the applicable law pursuant to Article 4(4).

Article 6

1. Whether and according to which conditions the paternity of a man may be judicially determined shall be decided according to the law of the state of the common nationality of the man and the mother or, where no such common nationality exists, according to the law of the state of their common habitual residence or, where no such common habitual residence exists, according to the law of the state of the habitual residence of the child.

2. For the purposes of paragraph (1), the time of the lodging of the application shall be determinative. If the man or the mother has already died at that time, then, in the absence of common nationality at the time of his death, the law of the state of the common habitual residence of the man and the mother at that time shall apply, or when no such common habitual residence exists, the law of the state of the habitual residence of the child at the time of the lodging of the application.

3. Where both the man and the woman have more than one common nationality, they will be deemed, for the purposes of the preceding paragraphs, not to have a common nationality.
Chapter 3
Legal Familial Ties by Legitimation

Article 7

1. Whether a child is legitimised by the marriage of one of its parents or by a later decision of a judicial or other competent authority shall be determined according to the Convention on the legitimation resulting from marriage signed in Rome on 10th December 1970 (Tractatenblad (Treaty Series) 1972, No. 61).

2. If application of paragraph (1) does not result in legitimation, legal familial ties may be established by legitimation according to the law of the state of the habitual residence of the child.

3. Paragraphs (1) and (2) do not apply where one of the parents possesses Dutch nationality and the marriage was not validly solemnised in accordance with the provisions of Articles 4 and 5 of the Wet conflictenrecht huwelijk (Private International Law (Marriages) Act).

4. For the purposes of the preceding paragraphs, the time of the marriage of the parents or, at the establishment of legal familial ties by a decision of a judicial or other competent authority, the time of the lodging of the application or claim shall be determinative.

Chapter 4
The Contents of the Legal Familial Ties on Account of Parentage

Article 8

1. Notwithstanding the provisions on special subject matters, the content of the legal familial ties between the parents and the child shall be determined according to the law of the state of the common nationality of the parents or, where no such common nationality exists, according to the law of the state of their common habitual residence or, where no such common habitual residence exists, according to the law of the state of the habitual residence of the child.

2. Where legal familial ties exist only between the child and its mother, the consequences of such legal familial ties shall be determined according to the law of the state of the common nationality of the mother and the child. Where no such common nationality exists it shall be determined according to the law of the habitual residence of the child.

3. Where the woman and the man have more than one common nationality, they will be deemed, for the purposes of the preceding paragraphs, not to have a common nationality.
Chapter 5
Recognition of Judicial Decisions, Legal Facts and Legal Acts Established Abroad whereby Legal Familial Ties on Account of Parentage were Established or Altered

Article 9

1. An irrevocable foreign judicial decision whereby legal familial ties on account of parentage are established or altered, shall be recognised in the Netherlands, unless

(a) there has been a manifestly insufficient connection with the Netherlands to found the jurisdiction of the Dutch court;
(b) there is, by operation of law, a lack of a proper investigation or proper legal process undertaken, or
(c) the recognition of the decision would be manifestly contrary to Dutch public policy.

2. A recognition of the decision may not be refused on account of a breach of Dutch public policy on the sole ground that another law had been applied thereto than would have resulted under the provisions of this Act, even if a Dutch national is involved in the matter.

3. No decision shall be capable of recognition where this would be irreconcilable with a decision of a Dutch court that has become irrevocable as regards the determination or alteration of the same legal familial ties.

4. The preceding paragraphs shall not affect the application of the Convention referred to in Article 7(1).

Article 10

1. The provisions of Article 9(1)(b) and (c), (2) and (3) apply mutatis mutandis to legal facts or legal acts established abroad for the determination or alteration of legal familial ties when these were recorded in an instrument drawn up by a competent authority in accordance with local provisions.

2. In any event, the following shall constitute a ground for refusal as referred to in Article 9(1)(c) with respect to a recognition,

(a) if the recognition is made by a Dutch national who, according to Dutch law, would not have been entitled to recognise the child;
(b) if, where the consent of the mother or the child is concerned, the legal requirements applicable pursuant to Article 4(4) were not complied with, or
(c) if the instrument manifestly relates to a sham transaction.

3. The preceding paragraphs shall not affect the application of the Convention mentioned in Article 7(1).
Article 11

This Act applies to legal ties that were established or altered abroad after its entry into force and to the recognition of legal ties, which after its entry into force, were established or altered abroad.

Article 12

This Act shall enter into force on a date to be specified by Royal Decree.

Article 13

This Act may be cited as Wet conflictenrecht afstamming (Private International Law (Parentage) Act).
(ADOPTION) ACT

Chapter 1
General Provisions

Article 1

The application of the Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in respect of Inter-country Adoption (Tractatenblad (Treaty Series) 1933, No. 197), the Act of 14th May 1998 implementing that Convention (Staatsblad (Bulletin of Acts and Decrees) No. 302) and the Act containing rules concerning the placement in the Netherlands of foreign children with a view to adoption is not affected by this Act.

Article 2

Notwithstanding Article 1, ‘adoption’ in this Act means a decision of a competent authority whereby legal familial ties are established between a minor child and two persons jointly or one person alone.

Chapter 2
Law Applicable to an Adoption to be Pronounced in the Netherlands and its Legal Effects

Article 3

1. Dutch law applies to an adoption to be pronounced in the Netherlands, except for the provisions of paragraph (2).
2. The law of the State whose nationality the child possesses applies to the consent or consultation of or to the information given to the parents of the child or of other persons or institutions. Where the child possesses more than one nationality, the law of the State whose nationality the child possesses with which, having regard to all of the circumstances, it has the closest connection will apply. If no provision is made for the legal concept of adoption in the law so designated, Dutch law applies. Whether the lack of consent may be replaced by a judicial decision shall also be determined according to the law applicable pursuant to this paragraph.
3. Dutch law applies to the revocation of an adoption pronounced in the Netherlands.
Article 4

An adoption pronounced in the Netherlands shall have the legal effects conferred by Dutch law as regards the legal familial ties between a child and its adoptive parents and the cessation of any pre-existing legal familial ties of the child.

Chapter 3
Recognition of a Foreign Adoption and its Legal Effects

Article 5

The provisions of this Chapter govern adoptions pronounced in States which are not a party to the Convention mentioned in Article 1.

Article 6

1. A decision made abroad whereby an adoption is pronounced shall be recognised in the Netherlands by operation of law when it is pronounced by a locally competent authority of the foreign State
   (a) where both the adoptive parents and the child had their habitual residence both at the time of the petition for adoption as well as at the time of the decision; or
   (b) where either the adoptive parents or the child had their habitual residence both at the time of the petition for adoption and at the time of the decision.
2. Recognition shall be withheld from a decision providing for adoption, (a) if there was manifestly no prior proper investigation or proper legal process before the decision was made, or
   (b) in the instance referred to in paragraph (1)(b), if this decision is not recognised in the State where the child or, as the case may be, the State where the adoptive parents, had their habitual residence both at the time of the application for adoption and at the time of the decision; or
   (c) if the recognition of such a decision would be manifestly in breach of Dutch public policy.
3. On the ground mentioned in paragraph (2)(c) recognition of a decision for adoption shall always be withheld, if the decision manifestly pertains to a sham transaction.
4. Recognition of a decision may, also when a Dutch person is involved, not be refused on the ground mentioned in paragraph (2)(c) only because another law was applied than would have followed from the provisions of Chapter 2.
Article 7

1. A decision made abroad whereby an adoption has been pronounced and which is pronounced by a locally competent authority in the foreign State where the child had its habitual residence both at the time of the application for adoption and at the time of the decision, while the adoptive parents had their habitual residence in the Netherlands, shall be recognised:
   (a) if the provisions of the Act containing rules concerning the placement in the Netherlands of foreign children were observed, and
   (b) if recognition of the adoption is manifestly in the best interests of the child, and
   (c) if recognition would not be withheld on the ground referred to in Article 6(2) or (3) of this Act.

2. An adoption as referred to in paragraph 1 shall be recognised only if the court has established that the conditions for recognition mentioned in that paragraph were satisfied. The procedure of Article 26 of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code applies.

3. The court which determines that the conditions for recognition of the adoption were satisfied shall order ex officio that the adoption shall be subsequently recorded in the appropriate instrument of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships. Articles 25(6), 25c(3) and 25g(2) of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code apply mutatis mutandis.

Article 8

1. A recognition as referred to in Articles 6 and 7 also includes a recognition of:
   (a) the legal familial ties between the child and its adoptive parents;
   (b) the authority of the adoptive parents over the child;
   (c) the cessation of any prior existing legal familial ties between the child and its mother and father, if the adoption will have this effect in the State where it took place.

2. Where adoption in the State where it was effected will not result in the cessation of previously existing legal familial ties, the adoption shall also not have that effect in the Netherlands.

Article 9

In the instance referred to in Article 8(2), if the child has its habitual residence in the Netherlands and was given permission to permanently stay there with its adoptive parents, an application for conversion into an adoption under Dutch law may be lodged. Article 11(2) of the Act implementing the Hague Convention of 29th May 1993 for the Protection of Children and Co-operation in respect of Inter-country Adoption applies mutatis mutandis. Article 3(2) of this Act applies mutatis mutandis in respect of the consent of the parents whose consent for the adoption was required.

Chapter 4

The Entry into a Registered Partnership in the Netherlands

Article 1

1. The entry into a registered partnership in the Netherlands is subject to the provisions of Article 80a of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code.
2. Dutch law governs the capacity of each of the partners to enter into a registered partnership in the Netherlands.
3. In terms of formal validity, a registered partnership may only be lawfully entered into in the Netherlands before a Registrar of the Registry of Births, Deaths, Marriages and Registered Partnerships in accordance with Dutch law, except for the right of foreign diplomatic and consular civil servants to give their co-operation to the entry into of registered partnerships according to the statutory provisions of the law of the State represented by them, if neither party exclusively possesses Dutch nationality or also possesses Dutch nationality.

Chapter II
The Recognition of a Registered Partnership Entered into outside the Netherlands

Article 2

1. Recognition shall be given to a registered partnership lawfully entered into outside the Netherlands or that has subsequently become lawful under the law of the State where the registered partnership was entered into.
2. A registered partnership entered into outside the Netherlands before diplomatic or consular civil servants shall be recognised as lawful when it meets the requirements of the law of the State represented by that civil servant, unless it was not permitted to enter into such a registered partnership in the State where it was entered into.
3. For the purposes of paragraphs (1) and (2), the term ‘law’ includes the rules of private international law.

Pursuant to Article 29(1) of the Act, the Act is not applicable to registered partnerships entered into prior to entry into force of the Act. In derogation from paragraph (1) Article 21 of the Act applies to the netting of pension rights in the case a registered partnership is terminated or dissolved after the date of entry into force of this Act.
4. A registered partnership is presumed lawful if a competent authority has issued a declaration in respect of the registered partnership.
5. Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), a registered partnership entered into outside the Netherlands will only be recognised as such, if it forms a legally regulated form of cohabitation between two persons who maintain a close personal relationship, and the cohabitation, at least, was registered by an authority competent to do so in the place where it was entered into; excludes the existence of a marriage or other form of cohabitation with a third person regulated by law; and creates obligations between the partners which, in essence, correspond with those in connection with marriage.

Article 3

Notwithstanding Article 2, a registered partnership entered into outside the Netherlands will not be recognised, if such a recognition would be irreconcilable with Dutch public policy.

Article 4

Articles 2 and 3 apply irrespective of whether a decision on recognition of the legal validity of a registered partnership is taken as a principal or as a preliminary issue in connection with any other issue.

Chapter III

Legal Personal Ties between the Registered Partners and their Mutual Relations as to their Property insofar as not constituting part of the Regime of Property of the Partnership

Article 5

1. Dutch law governs the legal personal ties between partners who enter into a registered partnership in the Netherlands.
2. The legal personal ties between partners who have entered into a registered partnership outside the Netherlands are also governed by the law, including the rules of private international law, of the State where the registered partnership was entered into.
3. Whether and to what extent one partner is liable for obligations accrued by the other partner during the ordinary course of the household shall be governed by Dutch law, if both the latter and the other party had their habitual residence in the Netherlands at the time of entry into the obligation.
Part III
Private International Law Legislation

4. Whether one partner requires the consent of the other partner for a legal transaction and, if so, in what form such consent must be granted or whether it may be replaced by a court decision or that of another authority and what its consequences are in the absence of such consent is governed by Dutch law, if the other partner has his or her habitual residence in the Netherlands when such a transaction was performed.

5. Paragraphs (3) and (4) apply notwithstanding the law governing the regime of partnership property of the partners and irrespective of the law applicable to the legal personal relations between the partners.

Chapter IV
The Partnership Property Regime

Article 6

1. The law that the partners designated prior to their registered partnership applies to the property regime of a registered partnership entered into in or outside the Netherlands.

2. The partners may only designate a legal system which recognises the concept of registered partnership.

3. The law so designated applies to all of their property.

4. However, notwithstanding the designation made by the parties referred to in paragraph (1), the partners may designate the law of the situs where all or part of the immovable property is located, provided that this legal system recognises the concept of registered partnership. They may also provide that the law of the situs where such property is located will apply to immovable property which is subsequently acquired provided that legal system recognises the concept of registered partnership.

Article 7

1. If a registered partnership is entered into in the Netherlands without the partners having designated the applicable law prior to their registered partnership, the partnership property regime will be governed by Dutch law.

2. If the registered partnership has been entered into outside the Netherlands without the partners having designated the applicable law prior to their registered partnership, their regime of partnership property is governed by the law, including the rules of private international law, of the State where they entered into their registered partnership.
Article 8

1. During a registered partnership entered into in or outside the Netherlands the partners may provide that their partnership property regime shall be subject to another internal law than the law applicable prior thereto.

2. The partners may only designate a system of law that recognises the concept of a registered partnership.

3. The law designated in this manner applies to all of their property.

4. Notwithstanding the fact that the parties made a designation referred to in paragraph (1) or Article 6, the partners may designate the law of the situs where all or part of the immoveable property is located, provided that this system of law recognises the concept of registered partnership. They may also provide that the law of the situs where such assets are located will apply to immoveable property subsequently acquired, provided that such a system of law recognises the concept of registered partnership.

Article 9

1. 2. The law which the partners have lawfully designated as the applicable law in respect of the partnership property regime for their partnership registered outside the Netherlands remains applicable so long as the partners have not designated any other applicable law even in the case of a change of their nationality or habitual residence.

Article 10

The applicable law to the partnership property regime as designated by the parties, also governs the conditions for the agreement of the partners with regard to that law.

Article 11

The designation of the law applicable to the partnership property regime must be explicitly agreed or must follow unambiguously from their partnership contract.
Article 12

Partnership contracts will be formally valid, if made in accordance either with the internal law applicable to the partnership property regime or with the internal law of the place where the contracts were entered into. In any case they must be stated in a dated, written document which has been signed by both partners.

Article 13

An explicitly agreed designation of the law applicable to the partnership property regime must be made in the form prescribed for partnership contracts either pursuant to the designated internal law or pursuant to the internal law of the place where such a designation is made. The designation must in any case be stated in a dated, written document which is signed by both partners.

Article 14

The consequences of the partnership property regime with regard to a legal relationship between a partner and a third person are governed by the law applicable to the partnership property regime.

Article 15

A partner whose partnership property regime is governed by foreign law may request registration of a notarial instrument in the register referred to in Article 116 of Book 1, Dutch Civil Code stating that the partnership property regime is not governed by Dutch law.

Article 16

1. A third person who has performed a legal transaction during the registered partnership with a partner whose partnership property regime is governed by foreign law may, if both he and both partners had their habitual residence in the Netherlands at the time of such legal act, take recourse for a debt arising from the legal act also after termination of the registered partnership as if there was a general community of property between the partners under Dutch law.

2. The provision of paragraph (1) does not apply if the third person, at the time of the legal transaction, was or ought to have been aware that a partnership property regime of the partners was governed by foreign law. This will be deemed to be the case if the legal transaction was performed... after the expiry of fourteen days from the registration of an instrument as referred to in Article 15 in the register referred to therein.

Article 17

Where as a result of the application in respect of any part of the property located abroad of the law designated pursuant to rules of private international law of the country of the situs one of the partners has enjoyed an advantage as regards the other partner to which the former would not have been entitled on account of such law on application of the designated law, then the other partner may claim a netting or compensation when an accounting is made between the partners in connection with a termination or a change of regime of partnership property.
