

Open Call for Papers!

The Erasmus Law Review seeks to foster independent critical scholarship as relevant to the discipline of law.

Erasmus Law Review works with one issue a year on submissions, more particularly the fourth and last one of the year. The Editorial Board encourages the submission of cutting edge manuscripts by legal scholars and practitioners as well as those versed in other disciplines relevant to law, such as criminology, sociology, political science and economics.

The deadline for submission for this call is the 15th of May 2018.

Submissions will first be screened by the Editorial Board, and those selected will go through the regular double-blind peer review process (two reviews per article).

In handling articles, Erasmus Law Review makes use of an online submission system called the Editorial Manager. Articles are to be submitted through this system at: <http://www.erasmuslawreview.nl/pagina/submit>.

Before submitting, thank you for ensuring that your article conforms to our Authors' Guidelines, to be found on the same webpage.

For more information please contact Yasmin Batenburg (primary contact) and Margaux Raynaud at batenburg@law.eur.nl and raynaud@law.eur.nl or visit the website at erasmuslawreview.nl.

We are looking forward to your submissions!
